12,000	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	- - The Amount first taken only contemplated the erection of some spare Machinery captured from Russia. The exigencies of the Service have rendered the erection of new and more complete Machinery necessary, which, with the fire-proof method of construction, and Story for Workshops over, have enhanced the Estimate.

*Note .—The Establishment of the Long Room has been revised, partly to provide for the increased business of the Department, and partly for the collection of the Light Dues, a duty which has been transferred to this Department. The Light Dues will now be collected at an expense of about 650 l. per annum, whereas until recently the charge was 3,600 l.; the difference will consequently go to the public account.

SIR W. J. HOOKER'S REPORT ON KEW GARDENS, &c.

Sir,

Royal Gardens, Kew, 31 December 1855.

DURING the 15 years that I have had the charge of the Royal Gardens of Kew, there is not one to which I can point with more satisfaction than that which is now past, on account of the benefits which the public in general have derived from them, both in healthful recreation and instruction. Nor can this be wondered at, seeing that, by the gracious permission of Her Majesty, the Pleasure Grounds are open, during the Summer months, as well as the Botanic Gardens. The whole area consists of nearly 400 acres, ornamentally planted, yearly increasing in attraction and beauty; it is stored with the choicest Trees and Plants that can be procured, either for decoration or use; and likewise contains a Museum, in which are exhibited the products of the various vegetable tribes from all parts of the World.

1. AS A PLACE OF HEALTHFUL RECREATION.—It is well known that this was one of the chief objects which Her Majesty's Commission had in view when the Gardens underwent such extension and improvement in 1841; that this object has been attained in a manner exceeding the most sanguine expectations is proved by the following Table of Visitors, from that year to the present; viz.,

Years.	Visitors.
1841 - - - - -	9,174
1842 - - - - -	11,400
1843 - - - - -	13,492
1844 - - - - -	16,114
1845 - - - - -	28,139
1846 - - - - -	46,573
1847 - - - - -	64,282
1848 - - - - -	91,708
1849 - - - - -	137,865
1850 - - - - -	179,627
1851 (the year of the Great Exhibition) - - - - -	327,900
1852 - - - - -	231,210
1853 - - - - -	331,210
1854 - - - - -	339,164
1855 - - - - -	318,818

Save in 1851, the year of the Great Exhibition, the annual increase has been regular and progressive till the year now closed, where the diminution is, however, capable of easy explanation by the singularly unfavourable weather which prevailed during the Spring and early Summer months. The number of visitors from January to July inclusive was 41,844 less than in the corresponding months of 1854; but during August and September the number in 1855 was 13,272 in excess over the same months in 1854; notwithstanding the attractions of the Great Exhibition at Paris, which must have drawn numbers away from their ordinary avocations in the neighbourhood of London.

Of the general conduct of this mass of Visitors, varying in number according to the season and the weather, sometimes amounting to 12,000 in a day, I have in former Reports expressed great satisfaction, and especially of that of the Middling and Lower Classes, who come generally in family parties and whose dress and demeanour are creditable and praiseworthy; and though improprieties are now and then committed by persons of those ranks, I have generally remarked that grosser misconduct, rudeness, pilfering, &c., are committed by people apparently of better education and a higher grade. A more effective patrol is necessary to prevent or correct such abuses. During the past year, and latter part of 1854, the Botanic Gardens have, by direction of the First Commissioner, been open on Sunday afternoons, in Summer as well as in Winter, until sunset, instead of to Six o'clock in the Summer as heretofore; and the privilege has not been abused.

2. EDUCATIONAL, INSTRUCTIVE, AND SCIENTIFIC DEPARTMENT.—Under these heads I proceed to notice very briefly the collections of Plants of various kinds, and the display of the uses and application of Botany, and of the products of Plants as shown in the Museum. It should not be forgotten that, from its earliest foundation in 1759, the Kew Garden was, and has ever since been, a Botanic Garden. Happily, Botany is not now, what it was a century, or even half a century, ago,—a dry study, mainly employed to determine the names or a few medical virtues of Plants. A desire on my part, as Director, to popularise the science, and to render it generally available, has been approved and encouraged by the several First Commissioners in a way which cannot fail to be of service to all classes of society. If proof were wanting, no better could be given than the rapid sale of a Guide to the Royal Botanic Garden, illustrated with 80 wood-cuts (price 6d.), which has gone through 13 editions (each of 2,500 copies), in the short space of eight years. Indeed the very peasant who never read a book on the subject, may here see attached to the Plant itself the name, vernacular and scientific, of the more useful kinds, while the child from school may acquire an impression of the form and general aspect of many Plants whose names he had learnt in books.

This is not the place to enumerate the many new, useful, and ornamental, Plants which have been acquired during the last 12 months, even if space allowed me to do so; but they are not less numerous or remarkable than in former years; nor can I fully specify all the Contributors at home and abroad who have added to our stores.

The erection, during the year, of a new House for Succulent Plants, 200 feet long 30 feet wide and 15 feet high, has enabled us to display (and to advantage, for the first time) our noble collection of Medicinal Aloes and Euphorbias, grotesque Cacti, and Fibre-bearing Agaves; this is perfectly unique of its kind. Our new Pits and Frames will allow us to satisfy the general taste for Flowers, by rendering the Lawns and open Borders more gay than they have hitherto been. The recently formed Arboretum, or collection of hardy Trees and Shrubs, in the Pleasure Grounds, has received considerable accessions from temperate climes, which require nothing but time, for their more full development, to become ornamental as well as highly instructive to persons who are interested in Forests and in ornamental planting.

A new Nursery has also been established by your directions for the rearing of Trees to adorn the London Parks.

I wish I could say that, what were once the pride of these Gardens, I mean, the numerous Conifers, and the Trees and Shrubs from Australia and New Zealand, South Africa, Temperate Mexico, &c., &c., which demand space (especially height) and greenhouse protection, were better provided for. Many of them are suffering beyond recovery for want of suitable Winter shelter. The great need for other buildings to accommodate our increasing Palms and other Field Plants of tropical countries has been the cause of deferring the erection of a Greenhouse adapted for Conifers, but I cannot on the present occasion urge too strongly on you as First Commissioner (what indeed you must yourself see) the imperative necessity for such a structure, if the remnant of these splendid specimens is to be saved.

The several Hothouses and Greenhouses, Pits, and Frames are well stored with new or rare and, especially, with useful Plants. The Palm Stove was never more beautiful than at the present moment, and so rapid has been the growth of some of the Trees and Shrubs that we have been obliged to remove them from their huge tubs, and to sink them in the ground. The Ferneries are particularly attractive. The Amherstia Nobilis, presented in 1854 by the late Mrs. Lawrence, is producing its flowers in great beauty during this inclement season; and if space permitted, it were easy to enumerate many other, and, it may be asserted, equally unique specimens, amongst them the very curious Lattice Leaf (Ouvirandra Fenestralis), brought to us in August last from the interior of Madagascar by the Rev. William Ellis, and the remarkable Rice Paper Plant of Formosa from Sir John Bowring.

The establishment of our present Museum of Economic Botany only dates from 1848. The Building affords 6,000 square feet of glazed cabinets for the deposit of those vegetable products that are either eminently curious or in anywise serviceable to mankind; it is consequently of the highest importance, if simply for instructional purposes, and essential to a great commercial country, as must be evident to any person who reflects on the innumerable ways in which the vegetable kingdom ministers to the wants of the human race. The ship-builder, the carpenter, the cabinet-maker, the general merchant, the manufacturer, the weaver, the physician, the druggist, the dyer, the oil and colourman, &c. &c., will here find, systematically arranged, the several objects in which they are interested, accompanied by their correct appellation, the countries whence they come, and the names of the Plants from which they are procured. Till this Collection, and the correspondence which it entailed, determined these points, many had been entirely or chiefly unknown as regarded their origin or native country; and it is indubitable that every year more and more information will be elicited on points of no slight importance to a great mercantile country. So valuable and extensive a Collection required a cheap and popular Guide Book, similar in size and plan to that for the Gardens, and one, with many illustrations, has consequently been published during the year just expired. The Museum had already become, even before the close of 1854, inconveniently crowded by the accession of new contributions, and a considerable amount of them had to be temporarily accommodated in the Temples and in Sheds. A Vote for an additional Museum was, therefore, submitted to, and sanctioned by, Parliament, and it has been happily so far carried out that at the moment of preparing this Report the walls are erected, and the roof will in a few weeks be covered in. This convenient structure is destined to give further accommodation to the extent of 13,000 square feet of mural glazed cabinets. And it is in every respect fortunate that the structure is so far advanced, for an additional opportunity of acquiring valuable collections was afforded during last Summer, when I was summoned by the French Imperial Commissioner to take an active part in the Jury of the Second Class at the Great Paris Exhibition. That class, mainly relating to Vegetable Products, offered the very objects most requisite to enrich our collection. A grant of 200 l. was accordingly obtained from the Treasury, to be expended in procuring such articles as were most important for the Kew Museum, while the President of the Board of Trade liberally offered to expend an equal amount. Thus provided, and further assisted by the several Officers of the Science and Art Department of the Board of Trade then in Paris, and enriched by numerous donations from many Exhibitors, 48 large cases were transmitted to Kew. They contain Vegetable Products, many of them very rare and valuable, from Algeria, Australia, Austria, the East Indies, France, the Grand Duchy of Hesse, Jamaica, Mauritius, Norway, Prussia, Sardinia, Sweden, Tuscany, the United States, Tasmania, Victoria, Wurtemberg, &c. &c. All have arrived in safety, and their contents will go far towards filling up the surplus space in the new Museum.

To say that this Collection of Vegetable Products is unrivalled, is saying little, and no more than might have been asserted while the Museum was quite in its infancy, since nothing of the same instructive kind had ever been attempted. Ours is the gratification of having set the example which is now being followed in several of our colonies (Jamaica, Demerara, Melbourne, &c.). The East India Company is forming a similar Museum in London, at Calcutta, and at Madras; another has been attached to the Botanic Garden of Edinburgh; and at the moment of drawing up this Report I observe the following paragraph in the Liverpool Daily Post:—"A Museum of applied Science is recently founded in connexion with the Royal Institution of this town. It contains already above 600 specimens, many of great value, and as it has commenced with the Vegetable Substances, we purpose to follow out the plan which has afforded so much satisfaction and instruction at the Museum of the Royal Gardens of Kew." A small, but well-arranged, series of similar objects was formed towards the close of the Paris Exhibition by order of his Imperial Highness the Prince Napoleon; and we are likely to have a powerful but honourable rival in the Museum of the Jardin des Plantes at Paris. There, indeed, an unexampled Collection of Woods, and other products connected with Physiology and pure Botany, has long been deposited, but with no approach to an Economic Museum till now, when donations and purchases at the close of the Great Paris Exhibition will lay the foundation of one on a most extensive scale.

3. THE HERBARIA AND LIBRARIES.—These constitute a novel but highly important department of the Royal Gardens. In 1854, as stated in my Report of last year, the late Dr. Bromfield bequeathed his valuable Library and his (chiefly European) Herbarium to the Royal Gardens; nearly at the same time G. Bentham, Esq. offered his exceedingly extensive Herbarium and Library (the formation of which had occupied nearly 35 years of his life) to this Establishment, with the sole proviso that they should be duly cared for and made available to scientific purposes, and that he himself should have convenient access to them for study; and this proffer was accepted. In addition to the above Collections the Public have the use of the Directors' vast private Herbarium and Library, kept distinct, but temporarily deposited with the others in the Residence that had been in the occupation of his Majesty the late King of Hanover, where they are under the charge of the Assistant Director; during the year now expired considerable additions have been made to these several Collections, as well as to the Libraries and the whole of the Books have been marked with the Government stamp.

The importance of this Department to the cause of science in general may be shown by a list of useful works which have issued from the press within the last two years, the authors of which have studied, wholly or in part, in these Herbaria and Libraries; and the essential service which it renders to the Garden and Museum is evidenced by the progress made in the determination of the Cultivated Plants and their products. Without accurate names, these collections would be valueless. The publications that have been wholly worked out from materials at Kew, and are completed or in progress, are, the Floras of New Zealand and Tasmania, and the Flora of the Voyage of H. M. S. "Herald," under Captain Kellett, all published under the authority of the Admiralty. A general Flora of India has been commenced. A book with splendid illustrations of Himalayan Plants is published; and the Botanical Magazine and Journal, and the various additions to the Guides to the Garden and Museum of Kew, have been continued as heretofore. The Herbaria and Libraries have further been consulted and studied in by numerous distinguished Botanists from the United States, France, Germany, Sweden, and other countries, during the prosecution of their labours in exotic Botany; large collections of accurately named duplicates have been distributed to public and private Museums in all parts of the World, and have been gratefully acknowledged. In short, without such Herbaria and Libraries, the information so eagerly sought by the Public on subjects connected with Plants could not be imparted.

Finally, I may close my Report with the statement that numerous Designers and Modellers, &c., and various Societies connected with science and art, derive great advantage from the Royal Gardens of Kew, and receive every encouragement.

I have, &c.
(signed) W. J. Hooker,
Director.

*To the Right Honourable Sir Benjamin Hall, Bart., M. P.,
First Commissioner of Her Majesty's Works and Public Buildings.*

REPORT of the ENGINEER IN CHIEF to the ADMIRALTY on PLAN for increased PACKET and POSTAL ACCOMMODATION.

8, Great George-street, Westminster,
1 February 1856.

Sir,

In January of last year I was directed by the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty to prepare the drawings and specifications of a Floating Landing Pier for Holyhead New Harbour, to accommodate the packet service.

It was at the same time intimated to me that such pier should not only be suitable for the largest class of Irish packets then contemplated, but also for the transatlantic packets; and that it should be so arranged as to admit of its being commodiously connected with the Chester and Holyhead Railway by a branch line made wholly through the harbour lands.

Previously, however, to the time when these instructions were given, it had been ascertained that large as this new harbour is, the growing use made of it by shipping for the purposes of refuge, &c., threatened a crowding which might occasionally greatly interfere with its use as a packet station.

As a relief from a result so unexpected, it was proposed by the harbour master to enlarge the harbour by an extension of the North Breakwater; and as a further means of increasing its size, it was suggested that the East Breakwater might be omitted, and the Platters Rocks, which it was designed to cover or mask, be blown away to a sufficient depth for the largest vessels to pass across them at low water.

I must beg to refer to my Report of the 4th May 1854, on the several questions then raised.

As therein recommended, I was ordered to extend the North Breakwater 2,000 feet. A contract was entered into for such extension on the 1st January 1855, and at this time the work has been advanced 1,500 feet.

90—I.

During

Printed with the Estimate last year.

During the progress of the extension works, we have watched with all care the effect of easterly winds on the harbour, so as to determine by observation whether the Eastern Breakwater would be required for the quiet of the harbour in such winds; we have also made a most minute model of the Platters Rocks, so as to estimate approximately the cost of blowing them away.

Pending the extension of the North Breakwater, it would obviously have been premature to determine the proper position for the required Landing Pier for the Packet Service, and this will account for the lapse of a year between the date of their Lordships' instructions and this compliance with them.

I have first to observe, that the result of the past year's experience convinces me that, whilst the whole of that portion of Holyhead Bay covered by the great Breakwater and extension, will be amply protected as an anchorage, the Eastern Breakwater will be necessary to convert the western half of the area so covered into a harbour sufficiently quiet to be suitable for the Packet Service, and in some weather for vessels that are ill found.

I have also fully satisfied myself that not only would the removal of the Platters Rocks occupy several years, but it would also be attended with a very large expense, whilst from their peculiar form and great extent they could not be safely beacons.

For all these reasons I am prepared to advise the construction of an East Breakwater, as originally proposed, and that the required Packet Landing Pier and Branch Railway should be made portions of the same.

On the Plan of the harbour which accompanies this Report, I have designed these several works, namely, the East Breakwater, the Floating Landing Pier, and the Branch Railway to connect the pier with the Chester and Holyhead line in the town of Holyhead; and,

First, as regards the EAST BREAKWATER.

This work would commence at the extreme northern point of Salt Island, or Ynys Gyby, be carried across the rocks known as the "Inner Platters," and terminate on those known as the "Outer Platters," with a western as well as an eastern head, as shown on the Plan.

These two heads more completely mask the rocks than could be accomplished by one head only, without unnecessarily contracting the width of the entrance to the New Harbour, whilst by the cross arm which unites them, that portion of the harbour which lies immediately within, that is, west of the East Breakwater, will be made quiet in all weather, and thereby be rendered suitable for the accommodation of the packets in the manner I shall presently describe.

The Eastern Head, as designed, is in 30 feet depth;* the water deepening to 36 feet immediately in the harbour entrance, which, as figured on the Plan, is 900 feet wide, with a depth increasing regularly from 36 to 45 feet.

The Western Head is designed as far south of the Eastern Head as it can be (having reference to the requisite depth of water in front of it), so as to avoid all unnecessary interruption to vessels beating into or out of the harbour.

As shown on the Plan, this head would be in 27 feet water, the depth, as in the case of the East Head, increasing rapidly to 36 and 45 feet in the entrance.

As vessels would doubtless have to hug these Heads when beating to and from the harbour, it will be requisite to build them as vertical walls.

It will also be necessary to light them with different coloured lights.

The work of the Breakwater itself would be of the same kind as that of the North Breakwater; but its slopes would be paved in the same manner as those of the Salt Island shore, where it commences.

Second, as regards the FLOATING LANDING PIER.

The great advantages of a Floating Pier, as contrasted with a fixed pier for the accommodation of steam-packets, and the class of traffic they chiefly give rise to, are, I assume, generally admitted. Detached from all walls or other obstructions that could damage a steamer in making her berth, they are approached without fear, and therefore without delay; and at the same time that they assure the commander of the safety of his ship, they are themselves rendered free by the yielding of their mooring chains, from liability to injury in the case of any concussion.

Again, if a fixed pier be raised to the proper height for the convenience of a large steamer (I may say for her safety, if she has paddles), it becomes excessively inconvenient at low water; and the objection applies with greater force where the same fixed pier, as would be the case at Holyhead, has to accommodate steamers of a small as well as of a large class.

These objections are obviated by a Floating Pier, for of course the tide affects it, and the vessels using it, alike; so that not only the landing and embarking of passengers and goods can be conducted on a uniform plan without regard to the state of the tide or the size of the vessel, but the ships' warps and fastenings would be much more easily and quickly handled than can be done in the case of a fixed pier.

This latter point is one of no small importance as regards the time which large steamers, requiring heavy hawsers, take in berthing or getting under weigh.

In this case I propose a Floating Pier to be built 600 feet long and 70 feet wide, and to moor it under the cover of the East Breakwater. The Plan shows the position proposed for it.

It

* Note.—All depths here given refer to low water of extreme low ebbs.

It will be seen that whilst it is completely protected from the influence of sea or wind, its position is so immediately within the entrance to the harbour as to leave the whole of the area of the latter free for the purposes of refuge; and that such is its line of direction with reference to the course of the packets to and from the harbour, that they can make it by an easy course sheltered by the North Breakwater extension, and "back" from it with all safety to themselves, and without interruption to the harbour or roadstead, if resorting to it only as a place of call for Post-office purposes.

But important as these advantages are, they are not the only ones which the proposed plan admits of. It will be seen that between the Landing Pier and the shore, and under the shelter of the breakwater, there is ample room and depth for moorings suitable for the accommodation of five or six first class packets, in a position perfectly clear from all interference with the free use of the pier, or with the refuge portion of the harbour; and near to the engine shops and packet repairing yard belonging to the Admiralty.

The pier itself is also capable of being used as a store for 2,000 tons of coals for the use of the packets or other vessels that may avail themselves of the harbour.

To make it complete for this purpose, I have arranged it so that it will admit of the erection of hydraulic machines for both discharging vessels bringing coals, and delivering the same to steamers from the store with the greatest possible rapidity.

The Drawing shows the block plans of two colliers delivering coal on the inside of the pier, and a packet of the dimensions of the new steam ship "Persia" on the outside. It also shows the accommodation which would be given for mooring five packets wholly within the line of pier, and under the direct shelter of the East Breakwater.

In concluding this head of my report, I would add that I propose to construct the pier wholly of creosoted pine timber used in whole barks, and to build it on the shore of the harbour, where every necessary facility for such a work is available.

This brings me to the third and last point to be considered, namely, the Railway for connecting the pier with the Chester and Holyhead Line, so that the traffic may have the least possible interruption in the transfer from the packets to the trains.

The Board is doubtless aware that the railway now used by the Chester and Holyhead Railway Company between their Station at Holyhead and the Packet Pier in the old harbour, is laid on land (principally the shore of the old harbour) belonging to their Lordships. Out of this portion of the railway now in use, I propose to run a branch line to the new pier, a length of 1,000 yards, of which 450 yards would be laid along the top of the proposed East Breakwater, and the remainder over land belonging to the Admiralty. But the extent and course of this branch will be best understood by a reference to the Plan.

The Plan also shows that for the more perfect connexion between the new pier and the railway, it is proposed to build at their junction complete accommodation for the transfer of passengers and their luggage, as also all mail bags, parcels and goods, under cover; the trains running through a convenient station building, having three covered ways leading directly to the pier, two being tubular bridges sloping according to the state of the tide, but at all times suitable for passengers and ordinary carriages; the third and centre way being occupied by a double line of rails, to the end of which the luggage and Post-office vans will be brought, and there be emptied or filled, as the case may be, by means of machinery for overcoming the difference in the level of the railway which will be fixed, and that of the pier which will vary with the tide; and such would be the nature of the machinery and other general arrangements at the end of the railway, that not only passenger carriages, but also luggage and Post-office vans, might be taken to the side of the steamer if preferred.

As respects the cost of the works now proposed, they contrast very favourably with the plan of 1846.

It was then contemplated to spend 150,000 l. on the pier alone, whilst the purchase of land, the making of a railway from the then Holyhead terminus to the pier, and the construction of the necessary station accommodation for the proper interchange of the traffic between the packets and the railway, would have cost the Admiralty and the Chester and Holyhead Railway Company an equal amount.

By the present plan, the estimated cost of the pier, the railway and the railway station, together with the consequent additions to the Eastern Breakwater, amounts in all to little more than the pier alone, as intended by the plan of 1846, viz., 153,000 l., instead of 150,000 l.

I have before referred to the circumstance that in the contract under which the harbour works are now being carried out, power is reserved to their Lordships to abandon the Eastern Breakwater should they be advised to do so.

It is, however, a condition in the contract that their Lordships shall declare their determination on or before the 24th of June this year. It will therefore be seen that if this breakwater is to be built, as experience, in my judgment, shows it should, and as will be necessary if the present design for the packet accommodation be carried out, then it will be desirable at once to call on the contractor to proceed with it as a part of his contract, and at the same time enter into a contract for the railway, station, and pier.

Finally, I beg to state that the whole of these works may be completed by the autumn of 1857, supposing that they are let to contract at once; but in that case it will be necessary to add 75,000 l. to the Vote of this year for the harbour.

To the Secretary to the Admiralty.

I have, &c.
(signed) Jas. M. Rendel.

* Of this sum 15,000 l. was voted last year on a Supplementary Estimate.

Note.—The Estimate for the Science and Art Branch will be found on page 6.

NOTES Explanatory of the ESTIMATE for PUBLIC EDUCATION, Great Britain, numbered to correspond with the Heads of that Estimate.

Memorandum.—The Index prefixed to the House of Commons Paper, No. 158 of Session 1855, will indicate the Minutes applicable to each head of the Estimate.

1. The Supplementary Vote of 15,000*l.* was taken last year on the occasion of extending the increased rate of aid for building schools, under the Minute of 2d April 1853, to the urban, as well as to the rural parts of the country. Grants have been awarded, but the claims for payment under the new Minute have not yet begun to fall in to their full extent.

The grants for building, enlarging, or improving school fabrics during the past year amounted to 77,442*l.*; the sum voluntarily subscribed, to 147,025 l.; the number of school-rooms built, 268; enlarged or improved, 261; teachers' residences built, 121; the number of children for whom additional accommodation in school has been provided, 36,918. The amount of outstanding liabilities for grants awarded, but not yet claimed or lapsed, is 79,012*l.*; a period of 18 months is allowed from the date of the award for claiming payment.

2. The grants made during the past year in aiding 843 schools was 2,884*l.*; the sum expended from private sources was 8,263*l.* The lists of books and apparatus are undergoing revision, and an increased number of applications may be anticipated in consequence.

3. The total number of pupil teachers is 8,524; at the end of 1854 it was 7,596. The apprentice's stipend begins at 10*l.*, and rises by 2*l.* 10*s.* per annum to 20*l.* The master or mistress of an apprentice has the benefit of the apprentice's services in school, and also receives a gratuity ranging from 3*l.* to 5*l.* for each apprentice, according to the number engaged. The period of service is for five years.

4. The capitation grants, averaging 4*s.* 6*d.* per annum upon each child who has attended school for 176 days during the year preceding inspection, have been paid in schools throughout the rural districts, and in the smaller unincorporated towns, since 1st January 1854. The amount paid in 1854 was 5,957*l.* on 22,801 children, being 33 per cent. of the children attending the same schools; in 1855 the amount paid was 10,125*l.* on 36,929 children, being 36 per cent. of the children attending the same schools.

The capitation grants are now to be extended to the parts of the country hitherto excluded from them, and the increased estimate is framed on the calculation that the expenditure would have risen to 15,000*l.* under the existing regulations; that the amount of the population hitherto excluded is almost exactly equal to that which has hitherto enjoyed the grants; and, lastly, that the attendance at school in towns is much less liable to interruption than in the country, so that the proportion of children on whom the grant is allowed may be expected to be greater.

5. The number of certificated teachers in charge of schools is 3,432; at the end of 1854 it was 2,836. The augmentation grants range from 10*l.* to 30*l.* per annum, according to the class of the teacher's certificate, the salary provided by the managers, the state of the school, and the sex of the teacher.

6. The number of assistant teachers (retained in schools under certificated masters or mistresses for three years after the end of their apprenticeship) is 221; at the end of 1854 it was 172. Assistant teachers receive 25*l.* per annum from the Committee of Council, and exhibitions are allowed to them if they enter any of the training schools under inspection at the end of their period of service.

7. The total number of Students in training at the end of 1855 was 1,872. The training may extend to three years, and may not be less than one year. At the end of each year all the students are examined before Her Majesty's inspectors. A grant (varying from 13*l.* to 24*l.*) is allowed to the College for each student who passes the examination, according to his year, and to the class in which he is placed. Two-thirds of these sums are allowed for female students. The number of students who passed successfully in the year 1855 was 1,254. In 1854 it was 1,132.

The

The Queen's Scholarships are Exhibitions or Bursaries, tenable for two years, which pupil teachers who have completed their apprenticeship, and certain other qualified candidates, may obtain by examination, and which are of sufficient amount to enable the holder to meet the demands made for residence and tuition in the Training Schools. The number of Queen's Scholars admitted in 1855 is 972. In 1854 it was 929.

The Lecturers are officers of the Training Schools, who pass an examination in the subject upon which they are to lecture, and receive 100*l.* per annum from the Committee of Council, on condition that the managers of the Training School provide 150 l., and that the Inspector reports well of their practical powers in teaching at his annual visits to the Training School. The number of lecturers hitherto passed is six, and more candidates are coming forward.

8. These grants for the general support of Training Schools were awarded to the existing Education Societies in the earlier years of the Committee's administration, and have been since continued, but without increase or extension, the Minutes of 1846 having introduced a different system of grants.

9. The Committee of Council is in communication with the Board of Works relative to a sale. (For the discontinuance of the Establishment, see House of Commons Paper, No. 338, Session 1855.)

10. The pensioners must have served for 15 years in school, and their schools must have been, during seven of those years, under inspection. Age or infirmity is a condition of every pension (30 l. per annum being the maximum for an elementary teacher), and the pension may be withdrawn on proof of misconduct, or of sufficient means of livelihood from other sources. The object of the pensions is to facilitate the appointment of competent successors in the place of meritorious but disabled teachers, whose removal may, by such assistance, be effected in a manner consistent with their claims. The number of pensioners at present is 14, and six have received gratuities (not to be renewed) on retirement.

11. Grants are made towards the salaries of assistants, or certificated schoolmasters; towards the rent of the land or premises (one-half of the amount); towards the purchase of tools, or raw materials for labour (one-third); and a capitation fee is also allowed of 10 s. per scholar under industrial instruction. The number of such schools is rapidly increasing. The number aided in the past year was 78.

12. The establishment has been recently revised. See Reports of Committees of Inquiry on Public Offices, presented to both Houses of Parliament, pp. 230-243. The increase is only apparent. Additional clerks have been added to the establishment in lieu of clerks hitherto hired from the establishment of Messrs. Vachers. See Report of the Civil Service Commissioners, p. 53. The number of schools (under separate teachers) inspected last year was 6,966; the number of children found present, 569,076; in 1854, the schools inspected were 5,575, and the children present, 473,214.

13. Same as last year.

R. R. W. Lingen,
Secretary.

EXPLANATIONS relating to the ESTIMATE of the COMMISSIONERS of NATIONAL EDUCATION, IRELAND, for the Year ending 31st March 1857.

THE house, No. 28, Marlborough-street, formerly occupied by Mr. Claridge, the accountant, is now used for official purposes. No. 29, Marlborough-street, was taken by the Commissioners as an auxiliary Training-house, but is at present occupied by a class of persons studying Drawing.

The rent of these two houses is now placed under its proper head of service, and will be found in another part of the Estimates.

The house, No. 27, Marlborough-street, as an auxiliary Training Department, has been given up by the Commissioners, and the charge in this Estimate reduced accordingly.

It was originally intended that this building should be erected on the grounds in the rear of the Marlborough-street premises, and in the year 1851–52 a sum of 3,000 l. was included in the Estimate for this purpose.

The Commissioners, after full consideration, and upon the recommendation of their architect, have resolved to change the site to a portion of the land connected with their farm at Glasnevin.

The buildings will be commenced at the earliest practicable period during the present year, and as from their extent the cost will be considerable, the Commissioners have added a sum of 3,000 l. to the sum already taken.

(C.)—Allowances of various kinds have been included in previous Estimates under the general head of "Miscellaneous Expenditure." In future this practice will be discontinued, and the Commissioners will take into consideration, without delay, the expediency of adding such allowances to the salaries of the persons to whom they have been awarded, as suggested by the Commissioners recently appointed to inquire into the Official Establishment.

There is a slight variation in the salaries of the Teachers of the Model Male, Female, and Infant Schools, in conformity with a system of classification laid down by the Commissioners.

The total amount will be found to be less than that previously taken under this head.

The object of this school is fully explained in the Report of the Commissioners for the year 1853, para. 41.

Towards the erection of these buildings a sum of 500 l. was contributed by the Directors of the Irish Great Southern and Western Railway, on whose property these schools are situated. The remaining portion of the expense was defrayed by the Commissioners. A sum sufficient for its maintenance is provided for in the present Estimate.

(F.)—The Albert Agricultural Training Institution.

In the management of the Model Farm new arrangements have been adopted, on the recommendation of the agricultural inspector, which have rendered it necessary to make an increase under several heads of expenditure and diminution in others.

It will, however, be found that the total cost of maintaining this department will not materially differ from that of last year.

(G.)—Building, &c., Minor School Houses (Model).

This class of schools will consist of a limited number of Minor Model Schools, comprising male, female, and infant departments, and is designed to exhibit the best specimens of the ordinary National Schools, and to be built at the entire expense of the State.

It is estimated that the cost of each, including furniture, &c., will be about from 800 l. to 1,000 l.

(H.)—District Model Literary Schools.

In compliance with a memorial from the gentry, clergy, and laity of all persuasions, the Commissioners have resolved on erecting a District Model School in the city of Londonderry, and for that purpose a site has been already selected and leased to the Commissioners, and a sum of 3,000 l. is included in the present Estimate on account of the contract works. Several applications have been also received from other parts of the country, earnestly requesting the Commissioners to erect additional District Model Schools.

The Commissioners do not intend within the present year to add to the number already in operation or in progress, more than one, the site of which is not yet determined on.

For this undertaking a sum of 4,000 l. is now asked.

(I.)—Salaries of Teachers of National Schools.

The sum provided for under this head in the Estimate for 1855–56 was larger than the amount actually paid, which did not exceed the sum of 100,000 l. The surplus is now applicable to the payment of salaries to teachers for the present year. The Commissioners have not therefore proposed any addition to this branch of expenditure.

(K.)—School Apparats, &c.

The Commissioners have long since decided on the propriety of opening a depôt in connexion with their Central Establishment in Dublin for the sale to National Schools of School Apparatus of every description.

Circumstances hitherto prevented the carrying out of this object, and they have now included the sum of 2,000 l., which, in the first instance, will be required for the purchase of stock, &c.

A proportionate reduction in the amount will take place in future Estimates, as the apparatus issued will be sold at reduced prices.

If the recommendations of the Commissioners of Inquiry be considered desirable, and are carried into effect, a portion only of the amount estimated for will be required, being for the time up to which the new arrangements will come into operation or are matured.

(M.)—Official Establishment.

Under the head of Official Establishment the sum of 8,900 l. has been included (exclusive of 1,000 l. for the Resident Commissioner) for salaries, &c. based upon the Report of the Treasury Commissioners, who were appointed to revise the Official Establishment.

The Report referred to has just been received, and is at present under the consideration of the Commissioners of National Education.

(N.)—Repairs and Works.

It is to be understood that the sum taken for expenditure under this head of service is not solely confined to the Official Establishment, but covers the Normal Department and Lecture Rooms, and Male, Female, and Infant Model Schools, all of which are situated on the grounds in Marlborough-street.

ROYAL IRISH ACADEMY (REPORT).

DURING the Academic Year 1854-5, ending the 25th June 1855, the usual number (14) of general meetings took place. These were attended by 789 members, and by 226 visitors, introduced by members of the Academy.

These numbers show an increase, severally, of 98 and 49, due probably to the progress made towards the completion of the internal arrangements of the new Academy House, and the superior salubrity of the room in which the Academy meetings have been held.

The permanent arrangement of the books and manuscripts in the Library has stood over during the past year, the shelving being insufficient, but it is to be expected that, with the additional accommodation just supplied, this department will be completed without further delay.

As the arrangements in both Library and Museum were only provisional, and the property in both much exposed, it was not considered safe to declare either open to the public. Visitors applying were however freely admitted, but no return of their number was kept.

In the course of the last year ten new members were elected, which shows an increase of two on the previous year.

A comparison of the last general abstract of the yearly account for audit, (1854-5) sent herewith, with that of the previous year, shows the gross private income of the Academy, consisting of—

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE ROYAL HIBERNIAN ACADEMY.

In presenting their Annual Report, the Academy have still to regret that the difficulties which have been pressing upon the Institution for several years past, as set forth in former Reports, have contributed to interfere with its prosperity, and with the advancement of those objects for which it was incorporated.

Incumbered with a debt caused by a falling-off in the receipts derived from their Annual Exhibition during the famine year, which debt has been increased by subsequent deficiencies in succeeding Exhibitions, the Academy have found it almost impossible to render the Institution as useful and as important as they feel it might be made were greater means at their disposal. The usual annual grant voted by Parliament to the Royal Hibernian Academy has never been sufficient for the absolute requirements of the institution; but, with the funds accruing from the Annual Exhibitions, the Academy were heretofore enabled to apportion some small salaries to their various officers, as well as make additions to their Collections of Pictures, and Casts for the Antique School, Books on Art, and Prints. Latterly, however, the Academy have been obliged to withhold payments from their officers for their services, and have been also unable to add to their collections or library; all their efforts having been directed towards the extrication of the Academy from its load of debt. They have laid before the Lord Lieutenant a statement of the liabilities and wants of the institution, and prayed for a sum of 500*l.* to liquidate the most pressing debts; but as yet they have not been favoured with an answer. However, by the exercise of the most rigid economy consistent with the due efficiency of their institution, they have this year apportioned over 200*l.* towards their liquidation.

The

The last Exhibition of the Academy opened late in the year 1854, and was not closed until January 1855; therefore the last Report did not contain a statement of the receipts, &c., of that Exhibition. The Academy had been induced to try the effect of holding their Annual Exhibition in the Winter season, instead of the Spring, as heretofore; but they have not found the change an advantageous one, and have therefore determined upon holding their future Exhibitions in the months of April and May.

The Exhibition 1854-55 contained 317 works. It was open during 105 days, 59 of which the admission was one penny, for the benefit of the operative classes. There were 624 visitors at one shilling, and 94 season ticket-holders at half-a-crown, making, with catalogues, the sum of 63*l.* 11*s.* 10*d.* During the penny admission, 28,440 persons visited it, and, including the sales of catalogues, 156*l.* 4*s.* 9*d.* was taken; making a total of 219*l.* 16*s.* 7*d.* The expenses amounted to close upon 400*l.*

From a wish to render their Annual Exhibition as popular and as generally instructive as possible, in the year 1846 the Academy originated the bold experiment of re-opening the Exhibition at the end of the season, for the nominal admission of one penny. It was intended more particularly for the working classes; but subsequently the middle classes availed themselves of it to the largest extent. The first year the experiment was tried it seemed eminently successful, and was much lauded by the press both here and in England. The following and succeeding years there was a very great falling off in the attendance.

The appended Tabular Statement of the receipts, disbursements, number of Visitors, &c., during the last Six Exhibitions, will show the practical working of the Penny admissions:

YEAR.	Number of Visitors at One Shilling.	Number of Visitors with Season Tickets.	Number of Visitors at One Penny.	Number of Catalogues at Sixpence.	Number of Catalogues at Reduced Price.	Number of Days Open at One Shilling.	Number of Days Open at One Penny.

1853	385 4 6	81 9 -	218 7 10	313 7 10
1854	352 4 1	63 11 10	156 4 9	219 16 7

From the above statement it appears that for the last six years there has been an evident falling-off in the number of visitors at a shilling, as well as of the season ticket-holders, although although the time it remained open did not materially diminish. The visitors at a penny have also fallen off, notwithstanding that the period it was kept open had gradually increased each year from 25 up to 59 days, necessarily more than doubling the expenses. This falling-off in attendance would be still more apparent, but that during the years 1853 and 1854 the Exhibition was opened during the evenings by gaslight; it has, however, little more than defrayed the expenses; but for this the number of visitors would have appeared in the Table as 11,939 in 1853, and 9,760 in 1854. The conclusion becomes inevitable, that although the attendance during the penny period averages the comparatively large number of 30,000 persons, yet that each year the Academy find it less remunerative; that the class for whom the reduction was intended shows itself indifferent to the advantage, and that those who can and did heretofore pay a shilling, now await the re-opening at a penny. The average expenditure on account of the Exhibitions for the last six years amounts to 355*l.*; but, as several debts were left unpaid and accumulating, 400*l.* would be more nearly the true sum. Therefore, the total cost of the six years' Exhibitions would amount to 2,400*l.*, and the total receipts to but 1,875*l.* In this view, it would appear that the fund which in former years enabled the Academy, in addition to the Annual Grant, to sustain itself, has, by the adoption of the penny admission, become instead a source of embarrassment. There were, no doubt, other circumstances which tended to produce a decline in the Exhibition receipts; for instance, the famine year, and the cessation of the Art Union; but these circumstances would not of themselves have produced such a ruinous falling-off unless another and a more potent cause existed.

The Council of the London Art Union have lately come to the resolution of permitting their subscribers to make purchases from the Exhibition of the Royal Hibernian Academy, which will be likely to afford some stimulus to Art, and be productive of advantage to the Exhibition.

The Academy feeling a lively interest in the establishment of an Irish National Gallery have had great pleasure in placing their Exhibition Rooms at the disposal of the Irish Institution, for a period of seven months, to hold the Second Exhibition of Ancient Art; and also, from a like wish to cultivate public taste, their rooms were lent to the Committee of the French Exhibition; and a most interesting exhibition of modern French paintings was thus opened in Dublin. During the year just passed they have been the means of placing two exhibitions of Fine Art before the public. A valuable painting by Brion has been presented to the Academy by the French Exhibition Committee, and will prove useful in their collection as a study for the pupils of the Academy.

The School of the Living Model was opened on the 3d September, and continues open up to the present time. The attendance has been rather an increase on former years; the average has been 11 pupils nightly. The Antique School was kept open during the summer, and up to the present date (31st December), a period of 34 weeks. The average weekly attendance, 12: total 408.

Thus the Academy have done their utmost to fulfil the objects for which they were incorporated.

REPORT.

My Lords,

National Gallery, 5 March 1856.

IN this, the first general Report on the National Gallery which, in obedience to directions from the Treasury, I have the honour to submit, I have included notices, more or less full of the principal proceedings that have taken place since the re-constitution of the establishment; together with various details, which may, now or hereafter, be useful in furnishing information respecting the present system of management.

The documents which, with that view, and with the sanction of the Trustees, I have selected, are for the most part inserted in the Appendix. Of those documents the Treasury Minute, dated 27 March 1855, and which stands first in order, will be referred to as the foundation of the altered establishment of the National Gallery, and as containing the leading regulations by which the Trustees, the Director, and other officers are guided.

In that Minute your Lordships propose "to continue the present Board of Trustees (with the exception of the members ex officio), if the noblemen and gentlemen composing it will continue to act."

The Trustees of the National Gallery at the date of the Minute were:—The Earl of Ripon, the Earl of Aberdeen, the Marquis of Lansdowne, Samuel Rogers, Esq., the Duke of Sutherland, the Earl of Ellesmere, Lord Monteagle, Sir James Graham, Lord Overstone, Lord Ashburton, William Russell, Esq., Thomas Baring, Esq., the Marquis of Northampton.

Such Trustees having been severally consulted accordingly, two declined, on the ground of ill health, to be re-appointed, Samuel Rogers, Esq., since deceased, and the Earl of Ellesmere. A copy of the Earl of Ellesmere's letter, in reply to the communication from the Treasury, will be found in the Appendix.

The remaining Trustees were re-appointed by Treasury Warrant, dated 3 January 1856. With reference to that date, the Warrant contains the following clause: "And we do hereby direct, that all acts and matters done by them in their capacity of Trustees aforesaid, up to the date hereof, shall be as valid and effectual as if this Warrant had borne the date of the Treasury Minute aforesaid."

The Director, the Keeper and Secretary, and the Travelling Agent were appointed by Treasury Warrants, dated 2 July 1855.

The number of Attendants was fixed by the Treasury Minute referred to. That number, as compared with the corresponding list in the former establishment, contains two additional attendants, a messenger, and a policeman.

The names, dates of appointment, and salaries of the officers and attendants, are stated in the Appendix.

The establishment having been thus formed, the appointments having been made, and general regulations having been issued, it remained to define the special duties of the Officers and Attendants.

The instructions which have reference to the functions of the Trustees, and the instructions under which the Director acts, are contained in the before-mentioned Treasury Minute. The instructions which relate to the rest of the establishment have been prepared in accordance with the following provision in that Minute:—

"The Director will prepare and issue, with the sanction of the Trustees, rules and instructions for the guidance of the Officers and Attendants in their duty; and he will in like manner frame regulations for the admission of students and others to make copies in the galleries, which rules and regulations, with any changes made from time to time, must be appended to the general Report which the Director is to make annually to the Treasury."

The regulations referred to have been prepared accordingly, and having received the sanction of the Trustees, has been inserted in the Appendix, as directed.

The

The Report which I have now to submit is divided into two parts, one relating to the purchase of pictures, the other relating to the state of the galleries, the proceedings of the Board, and the details of the establishment.

REPORT ON THE PURCHASE OF PICTURES.

During the last Session the House of Commons voted the sum of 17,696 l., "for the establishment and expenses of the National Gallery," for the year ending 31st March 1856, a portion of that grant, amounting to 3,316 l., being appropriated to the repayment of sums previously advanced for various purposes.

Of the remainder of such grant, 10,000 l. was appropriated to the purchase of pictures. The duties of the Director, with reference to the employment of that sum for such purpose, are defined by instructions, occurring under various heads, in the before-mentioned Treasury Minute (pp. 40, 41, 43).

On 6th August 1855 I submitted to the Trustees a proposal for the purchase of certain pictures on the Continent, together estimated by me at the sum of 10,000 l. As I considered that, while travelling on the Continent with a view to the acquisition of those works, other favourable opportunities might arise, I proposed further, that, in the event of some of the contemplated purchases not taking effect, a certain sum, to be determined by the Trustees, should be placed at my disposal, to meet such possible cases. The following was the resolution of the Trustees thereupon:—

"Resolved,—That the Trustees concur in the views expressed by Sir Charles Eastlake in the letter which has been just read. With respect to that part of it in which he invites the Trustees to name a certain sum to be placed at his disposal, they find, that although the negotiations contemplated would absorb the 10,000 l. voted by Parliament for the purchase of pictures, yet as some of those negotiations may not take effect, they think that the portion of that sum to be placed at his disposal, under such circumstances, should be 3,000 l.

"Resolved,—That a copy of the letter referred to, and of this Minute, be transmitted to the Treasury."

Copies of the letter and resolution having been transmitted accordingly, the recommendation of the Trustees was sanctioned by Treasury Letter, dated 11th August 1855.

The copy of the letter so transmitted to the Treasury was, by direction of the Trustees, marked "Confidential." It is the opinion of the Trustees that, in general, communications respecting pictures which may hereafter be selected for purchase, and respecting proposed or pending negotiations, can only be made known, consistently with the recognised objects of the National Gallery, to the Trustees and to the authorities at the Treasury.

Of the negotiations at first proposed, which might have absorbed the grant of 10,000 l., some were found to be either for the present impracticable or altogether inexpedient. The estimated cost of the pictures, the purchase of which was indefinitely postponed or relinquished, exceeded 3,000 l., the sum which, under such circumstances, was to be placed at my disposal. Having met with opportunities of obtaining certain pictures eligible, in my judgment, for the National Gallery, I proceeded, according to the authority committed to me, to enter into or to authorise negotiations for the purchase of the same.

Eighteen pictures were so purchased, the entire cost of which was 3,183 l. 7 s. 2 d. Details respecting each picture are in the Appendix.

According to instructions in the Treasury Minute before quoted, I duly reported the above purchases to the Trustees, partly, and as far as then completed, on 12th November 1855, and entirely, with the necessary details, on 4th February 1856.

In my statement of 12th November I also reported a negotiation for a picture by Mantegna, not comprehended in the list submitted in August last. That picture was ultimately purchased for the sum of 1,125 l. 12 s. Particulars respecting it will be found in the Appendix.

On the same occasion, 12th November 1855, I submitted a proposal respecting a picture by Paul Veronese, concerning which I had received information, and which shortly after arrived in England.

The picture referred to was subsequently purchased for the sum of 1,977 l. Details respecting it are in the Appendix.

Of the pictures above enumerated, which have been purchased on the Continent, one only, the Mantegna, is as yet arrived in this country; but the case has not as yet been forwarded to the National Gallery. The Paul Veronese, having been sent to London for my inspection, is the only work purchased from the grant for the year ending 31st March 1856, which has, at this date, been placed in the National Gallery.

The account relating to the purchase of pictures, and balanced with the sum appropriated to such purpose, will be found in the Appendix.

Such is the extent of the transactions hitherto undertaken. In conclusion, I beg leave to state that I have had the fullest reason to be satisfied with the qualifications and competency of Mr. Mündler, the Travelling Agent, for the important duties which necessarily devolve upon him.

The second portion of the Report which I have the honour to submit relates to the state of the National Collection, the proceedings of the Board, and the details of the establishment.

Among the duties of the Director before adverted to, he is required to attend to "the arrangement, description, and conservation of the collection." (Treasury Minute, p. 40).

ARRANGEMENT of the PICTURES.

The arrangement of the pictures, both in the apartments in Trafalgar-square and in those at Marlborough House, is not, and cannot under existing circumstances be, such as to display all the pictures advantageously.

In Marlborough House the unavoidable crowding of the pictures, sometimes in situations imperfectly lighted, is known to be temporary; but although the time is approaching when those pictures must be removed, I am not aware that any other locality has as yet been proposed for them.

Since the important donation of the Vernon Gallery, the pictures of the English school which were formerly in Trafalgar-square have, with very few exceptions, been removed to Marlborough House. The collection in Marlborough House may therefore be regarded as the nucleus of a future English Gallery of Art.

Although donations can scarcely be said to be invited by the mode in which pictures of the English school are now exhibited, yet donations or bequests may, ere long, be such as to render the apartments in Marlborough House altogether insufficient for the reception of pictures so added to the collection.

The result of the proceedings in Chancery respecting the Turner bequest may add to this department of the National Gallery an extensive series of the works of that master; and it should be borne in mind that the condition on which those works can become national property is, that a proper place should be provided for them within ten years from the decease, in 1851, of the testator.

On these grounds, I have to call your Lordships' attention to the necessity of providing some other locality for the English works of art now in Marlborough House. I beg also to recommend that such other locality may be sufficiently ample and well lighted to display satisfactorily the present collection, and its future possible additions.

With regard to the plan recently proposed, and received with such universal favour, for the establishment of a gallery exclusively for portraits, I observe that the annexation of such a gallery to either of the present collections in Trafalgar-square or in Marlborough House would be another reason for providing additional room.

The arrangement of pictures by the old masters is a subject which will at a future time require much consideration; but in the building in Trafalgar-square, in which the space is becoming insufficient for the proper display of the pictures hitherto collected, it is impossible at present to adhere to any regular system. Additional pictures will require to be placed, not always according to schools and epochs, but where they can, for a time at least, be duly exhibited and inspected; consequently various works will by degrees be unavoidably removed to less eligible situations.

A new building having been recommended by a Committee of the House of Commons, a remedy for the inconvenience to which I have adverted will, it is presumed, be provided; but even if the site and plan of that building were already determined, several years would necessarily elapse before it could be fit for the reception of pictures; the new gallery at Munich was ten years in building, the new gallery at Dresden scarcely less. The question is, where are pictures to be placed in the meanwhile? The most feasible plan seems to be that recommended by the late Lord Colborne, to add on the north side of the present National Gallery a long room or corridor, which might be supported on iron columns, so as to encroach as little as possible on the barracks on that side. As there is a narrow courtlet or passage separating the north wall of the National Gallery from the barracks, the actual encroachment would not require to be more than six or eight feet, unless an ample portico in that situation should be considered desirable in itself with reference to the barracks. If, however, a portico of any kind should be considered objectionable, it would be possible to support such an additional room without columns, but by means of iron beams ending in cantilevers, so as not to encroach at all on the barracks. The only inconvenience in that case, as in the other, would be the darkening to a certain extent of the dwelling-rooms below. The construction of a room supported on cantilevers would require that the gallery should be closed for a much longer period than the usual vacation; but supposing columns to be employed, it would not be necessary that the gallery should, on account of the proposed addition, be closed at all.

DESCRIPTION of the PICTURES.

"The compilation and continuation of the historical catalogues of the pictures forming the National Gallery in Trafalgar-square and in Marlborough House (which are sold to the public) will be undertaken by the Keeper in his capacity of Secretary as a part of his ordinary duties, subject to the approval and revision of the Director." (Treasury Minute, p. 43). A catalogue of another kind will be undertaken by the Director alone.

"One of the most important duties of the Director, and one which will require great care and attention, will be to construct a correct history of every picture in the collection, including its repairs, and describing accurately its present condition, which history will be continued from time to time by new entries as occasion may require." (Treasury Minute, p. 40). The occupations consequent on the new arrangements of the establishment have prevented me as yet from proceeding to any great extent with the catalogue referred to.

The

The description when complete will be verified by two Trustees. "Two of the Trustees will attest by their signatures the correctness of the general Report of the Director, respecting the state of the pictures in the Gallery, such Report being a statement of facts only, irrespective of any recommendations based thereupon." (Treasury Minute, p. 40).

Recommendations may nevertheless be submitted to the Trustees, and, subject to their sanction, to the Treasury. In the event of an Act of Parliament being passed authorising the sale of any portion of the national collection, I shall be prepared to recommend that various pictures, including a portion of the Minden pictures, and some of the less valuable or superfluous specimens in the Gallery, should be disposed of; whether by public sale, or by lending such pictures to museums in other capitals of the United Kingdom, or to provincial collections, will remain to be determined. I shall also be prepared to express my opinion, or the opinion of competent authorities, respecting the present designations of some pictures in the collection.

In connexion with the historical description of works in the Gallery, I have to report that, in accordance with a suggestion in Parliament on 20th July last, and which appeared to receive the approval of the Government, I have, with the sanction of the Trustees, proceeded to append to every picture a description of the subject; the date, when known, of the birth and death of the artist; and the school of painting to which he belonged.

The catalogue of the works of painters, undertaken by the Keeper, is in progress.

CONSERVATION of the PICTURES.

The Treasury Minute before referred to contains no specific directions with regard to the conservation of the pictures in the collection, but the opinions and recommendations on that subject in the Report of the Select Committee of the House of Commons on the National Gallery in 1853, may, it is conceived, be generally consulted with advantage by the Director. (Report, p. xiii.)

The late Keeper had reported to the Trustees the state of the Baroccio (No. 29) in the Gallery, and, on the authority of a Commission, had recommended its relining. That operation has been since completed. The minutes and correspondence on the subject will be found in the Appendix.

The other operations, of which notices will be found in the Appendix, are less important. Two pictures only were varnished during the vacation. I satisfied myself that the varnish used for the purpose was an essential-oil varnish.

The backs of all the pictures were cleansed during the last vacation, and measures are in progress for protecting the backs of the pictures permanently from dust. Some pictures, with the sanction of the Trustees, and in accordance with the suggestions in the Parliamentary Report referred to, have been protected with glass. The chief improvement, nowever, in the appearance of the pictures in the Gallery is the result of the frequent and careful removal of dust from their surface. I have entrusted this operation, subject to my directions, to Mr. John Bentley, whose care and experience are generally known. The material he employs for this operation is cotton, the surface of the picture being previously moistened or not, according to the state of the surface, and according to other circumstances.

Among the pictures of the English school in Marlborough House several are in an unsatisfactory state. Those to which I refer more particularly are the Village Festival and the Blind Fiddler, by Sir David Wilkie, the picture of Edith finding the body of Harold, by Hilton, and more than one by Etty. During the management of the late Keeper, Mr. Mulready and Mr. Seguer were called in to assist him in deciding whether it was expedient that any measures should be taken with a view to arrest the progress of decay or mischief in those pictures. After careful inspection those gentlemen recommended postponing any remedies, in order to ascertain by a later examination whether the evil be, or be not, on the increase. The two pictures by Sir D. Wilkie were at the same time placed under glass. Having again recently examined the English pictures, Mr. Mulready and Mr. Seguer are of opinion that the evils referred to have not increased, and with regard to the Wilkies, they do not recommend that the cracks should be stopped at present.

GENERAL ARRANGEMENTS.

Various arrangements conducted under the direction of the Office of Works, with a view to the cleanliness, ventilation, and safety of the buildings, are in progress.

BEQUESTS and DONATIONS.

Since the reconstitution of the National Gallery, the following Pictures have been bequeathed to the collection:—

Titian.—Noli me Tangere. Painted on canvas; measure, 3 feet 7 inches high, 2 feet 11½ inches wide. Formerly in the Orleans collection.

Giorgione.—A Knight in Armour. Painted on wood; measure, 1 foot 3½ inches high, 10½ inches wide. Formerly in the collection of Benjamin West, P. R. A.

The above three pictures were bequeathed by the late Samuel Rogers, Esq. They were placed in the National Gallery, January 29, 1856.

Pordenone.—Half Figure of an Apostle. Painted on canvas; measure, 4 feet 11 inches high, 3 feet 9 inches wide. Said to have come from a church in the territory of Venice.

Presented by the Cavaliere Vallati, Rome; placed in the National Gallery by direction of the Trustees, February 6, 1856.

Sir Godfrey Kneller.—Portrait of John Smith, the Engraver. Painted on canvas, measure, 2 feet 5½ inches high, 2 feet ½ inch wide. On the back of the picture is fastened a paper, with the inscription, written by Kneller, "Johannes Smith, Godfridus Kneller fecit et dono dedit, 1696."

Presented by William Smith, Esq. Inspected and accepted by the Trustees on 3d March 1856.

I have the honour to be,

My Lords,

To the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury.

Your obedient humble Servant,
(signed) C. L. Eastlake.

Appendix, No. 1.

COPY of a TREASURY MINUTE, dated 27 March 1855, Reconstituting the ESTABLISHMENT of the NATIONAL GALLERY.

No. 867 of 1853.

MY Lords have before them the Report of the Select Committee of the House of Commons on the National Gallery, dated 4th August 1853.

This Committee was appointed "To inquire into the management of the National Gallery; also to consider in what mode the collective monuments of antiquity and fine art possessed by the nation may be most securely preserved, judiciously augmented, and advantageously exhibited to the public."

The principal recommendations of the Committee, so far as regards the future management of the Gallery, are the following:

1. A Board of Trustees to be continued.
2. No person to be a Trustee ex officio.
3. The Trustees to be appointed by the Treasury.
4. The number of Trustees to be diminished as vacancies occur.
5. The office of Keeper to be abolished.
6. A salaried Director to be appointed.
7. Recommendations for purchases of pictures to be made by the Director in writing to the Trustees.
8. A fixed sum to be annually voted in the Estimates, and placed at the disposal of the Trustees for the purchase of pictures.

As these recommendations, combined with other suggestions in the Report, render necessary an entire revision of the system under which the National Gallery has been managed up to this time, and as the Board of Treasury has always been the controlling power and principal authority over this institution, it appears desirable, before my Lords proceed to lay down the rules and regulations under which the management of the Gallery shall for the future be conducted, that they should briefly recapitulate the official documents which have emanated from this Board in reference to the Gallery.

In the year 1823 the collection of pictures of the late Mr. Angerstein was negotiated for by the Treasury, and a vote was taken in the year 1824 for the purchase of them for the sum of 60,000 l.

On 23d March 1824, the Board of Treasury, by Minute, appointed a Keeper of the Gallery, whose functions were defined as follows:

"To have charge of the collection; to attend to the care and preservation of the pictures; to superintend the arrangements for admission; to be present occasionally in the Gallery; and to value and negotiate (if called upon) the purchase of any pictures that may in future be added to the collection, and to perform such other services as he may from time to time be called upon to do, by instructions from the Treasury."

On 2d July 1824, a Treasury Minute nominated a Committee of six gentlemen "to undertake the superintendence of the National Gallery of Pictures, and to give such directions as may be necessary from time to time, for the proper conservation of them, to the Keeper, who will be instructed to conform to their orders."

The

The Keeper was informed accordingly, and was instructed "in future to submit to the Committee above mentioned his requisitions for advances of money to defray the expenses of the establishment, and forward them to the Treasury, under their sanction."

On 31st March 1824, an Assistant Keeper and Secretary was appointed by the Treasury. He was instructed "to attend to the Gallery on public days; to act as Secretary; and to superintend, under the Keeper, the arrangements for the admission of the public, and of the artists who study in the Gallery," &c.

The Committee of gentlemen nominated by the Treasury Minute of July 1824 has, under the name of "Trustees," continued to the present time as the superintending body over the Gallery, vacancies by death or otherwise being filled up on the nomination of the First Lord of the Treasury for the time being; but questions of money for the purchase of pictures, &c., being always referred to the Chancellor of the Exchequer for the time being, the decision of the Treasury was final; the First Lord of the Treasury and the Chancellor of the Exchequer being moreover ex officio Trustees of the Gallery.

The practice, as regards "purchases of pictures," has been for the Treasury to advance, from Civil Contingencies, the sums necessary, and to provide, in the Estimates for the National Gallery for the year following such purchase, the sums necessary for repaying to Civil Contingencies the amount so advanced.

The evidence given before the Select Committee distinctly proves that the system above described has not conduced to the welfare of the institution; the instructions from the Treasury were not sufficiently specific, and, as the Trustees themselves did not frame any rules, neither Trustees nor Officers seem to have known precisely what were their proper functions, or how to act on emergencies or difficulties; and as regards the purchase of pictures, the Chancellor of the Exchequer has often been influenced, in withholding pecuniary assistance, by the state of the finances of the country, irrespective of the advantageous opportunities from time to time afforded for adding to the national collection.

The National Gallery has much increased in size and importance since its commencement in 1823, and it will be the object of my Lords, in the arrangements they now proceed to make, in conformity with the recommendations of the Parliamentary Committee, not only to meet the existing requirements of the Gallery, but to promote the development of the institution and make it more worthy of the country and the advanced position of art. In approaching this task, my Lords understand that the great essential principle aimed at by that Committee was to secure, in the management of the National Gallery, the advantage of the full and undivided responsibility of an officer highly qualified and liberally remunerated; and that while it was contemplated that such officer should have the aid and assistance of unpaid Trustees, yet that the relative position of the Director and Trustees should be such as should in no way weaken the responsibility of the former. With these views my Lords proceed to state what appears to them the best regulations for the future.

BOARD OF MANAGEMENT.—TRUSTEES and DIRECTOR.

My Lords are not prepared to abolish entirely the system under which the Gallery is superintended by a Board of Trustees, but they will clearly define the amount of responsibility respectively attaching to the Trustees as a body, and to the salaried "Director," whom they propose to associate with the Trustees, and on whom must be fixed the final responsibility in cases in which any difference of opinion may arise.

Their Lordships are of opinion that the continuance of Trustees is desirable, not for the purpose of sharing, except in a very limited and defined form, the responsibility of the Director, but in order to keep up a connexion between the cultivated lovers of art and the institution, to give their weight and aid, as public men, on many questions in art of a public nature that may arise, and to form an indirect though useful channel of communication between the Government of the day and the institution.

Without this aid the Director would be in a high but insulated position, reporting periodically to the Treasury, but missing the counsel and experience of the Trustees, and being without that stimulus to exertion which the knowledge of the bond of union existing between the lovers of art in this country and himself, through the medium of the Trustees, would be calculated to afford.

My Lords propose, therefore, to continue the present Board of Trustees (with the exception of the members ex officio), if the noblemen and gentlemen composing it will continue to act.

But they are of opinion that it will not be desirable that the vacancies occurring shall be filled up until the present number shall be reduced to four, and that thereafter it shall not at any time exceed six; vacancies as they occur being filled up by the First Lord of the Treasury; no person being appointed or acting in virtue of any office he may hold.

My Lords propose to appoint a Director of the National Gallery, with a salary of 1,000 l. per annum, such appointment to be for a term of five years, but the Director to be eligible for re-appointment, which appointment, however, may be at any time revoked by the Treasury.

My Lords consider it a fortunate circumstance that they are able to select for the first appointment to this important office a gentleman of such high attainments as Sir C. Eastlake, who is President of the Royal Academy, and has shown qualifications of the highest order for the office.

The Trustees and the Director being thus appointed, my Lords proceed to define the duties and the limit of responsibility attaching to each, before they proceed to fix the remainder of the establishment of the institution and the system of accounts and payments.

The Trustees will hold meetings at the Gallery in Trafalgar-square on the first Monday in every month during the Session of Parliament, (and at such times, when Parliament is not sitting, as the Director may consider necessary), being duly summoned by the Secretary.

No quorum of Trustees will be necessary to legalise proceedings.

The Director will attend all the meetings, unless prevented by illness or other unavoidable cause; the Secretary will also attend.

The Trustees will have before them the minutes of proceedings, the Director's report or statement respecting offers of pictures for sale, and respecting bequests and donations, together with all other reports and communications, special or ordinary, relating to the establishment, which in the opinion of the Director should be submitted to the Trustees.

In the event of the Director proposing the purchase of any picture, the Trustees may either sanction such purchase on the grounds submitted, or if they object to sanction it, and the Director should still propose to act on his own opinion, they may cause their dissent, together with their reasons, to be entered in the minutes, and the whole proceedings shall be submitted to Parliament along with the Annual Report on the Gallery, which will in future accompany the Estimate.

In cases admitting of no delay, where the Director may have completed a purchase before a meeting of the Board could be called, the approval or disapproval of the Trustees on receiving the report will be recorded as above.

As offers of pictures may be sometimes made to the Trustees directly, and as the Trustees might occasionally be disposed to take the initiative in suggesting the purchase of pictures, such proposals or suggestions may be made by them after the Director's report has been disposed of. The decision of the Director on such proposals, after due inquiry, would be final; but the Trustees will have the power of recording a protest in the minutes, as above.

The Trustees may also make any suggestions they desire respecting the management of the establishment or of the Gallery; but on all such suggestions, the decision of the Director will be final. The Trustees, if they wish it, having the suggestions and the decision recorded in the minutes.

The appointments of attendants and of the officers rests with this Board; and all recommendations to the Treasury should be made on the responsibility of the Director.

Two of the Trustees will attest by their signatures the correctness of the general report of the Director respecting the state of the pictures in the Gallery, such report being a statement of facts only, irrespective of any recommendations based thereupon.

The Trustees, or any one of them, will communicate from time to time with Her Majesty's Government officially on the affairs of the National Gallery when they think fit, and lend to the Director their assistance, co-operation, and advice in any steps to be taken in respect of them.

Subject, therefore, to such regulations and directions as may from time to time be issued by my Lords, the management of the National Gallery, and the care and ordering of such national property as may be deposited therein, will henceforward be vested in Trustees and a Director; and my Lords entertain a strong hope, that although the relation of the Trustees and the Director may appear anomalous, yet that the system will in practice work harmoniously, and that it will be found, that while on the one hand the responsibility and authority of the Director remain clearly defined and paramount, yet that the publicity to be given to the proceedings at the meetings of the Trustees, when a difference of opinion arises, will have its due influence on the judgment of the Director, and render a resort to the alternative herein provided of the rarest possible occurrence.

THE DIRECTOR'S DUTIES.

The chief duties of the Director, in addition to his functions at the Board of Trustees, will consist in the selection and purchase, or recommendation for purchase, of pictures for the National Gallery, and in the arrangement, description, and conservation of the collection.

One of the most important duties of the Director, and one which will require great care and attention, will be to construct a correct history of every picture in the collection, including its repairs, and describing accurately its present condition, which history will be continued from time to time by new entries as occasion may require.

The selection of pictures must, of course, be left in a great measure to the judgment of the Director, aided by the Trustees, but my Lords are of opinion that, as a general rule, preference should be given to fine pictures for sale abroad. As regards the finer works of art in this country, it may be assumed that, although they may change hands, they will not leave our shores, whereas the introduction of fine works from abroad would form a positive addition to the treasures of art in England.

My Lords are also of opinion that, as a general rule, preference should be given to good specimens of the Italian schools, including those of the earlier masters. It must, however, be clearly understood that their Lordships do not intend in any way to fetter the Trustees and Director in their choice, but that they must use their discretion as circumstances arise.

My Lords propose, in accordance with the recommendation of the Committee, to insert annually in the Estimate for the National Gallery a sum expressly for the purchase of pictures. This sum need not be annually expended, but might accumulate, and thus enable the Trustees and Director to purchase a fine collection at once, if such an opportunity should offer.

If cases of sudden emergency should arise, it will be competent for the Director to purchase a picture out of the sum so voted, and as he will do this entirely on his own responsibility, it will be necessary that the reasons for the purchase should be fully stated in writing, and placed on record at the next ensuing meeting of the Trustees.

In the event of the Director recommending a larger purchase than the grant at the disposal of the Treasury can meet, his recommendation and the opinion of the Trustees thereon, after being inserted on the minutes, must be forwarded to my Lords for their consideration.

My Lords are of opinion that, for the present, the loan or temporary deposit of pictures in the National Gallery should not be permitted.

If it shall be decided by the Trustees, on the recommendation of the Director, to remove any picture from the collection, either for the purpose of lending it to some provincial collection, or as a permanent measure, a report stating the reasons for this must be made to my Lords, and their sanction obtained.

The Director will prepare and issue, with the sanction of the Trustees, rules and instructions for the guidance of the officers and attendants in their duty, and he will in like manner frame regulations for the admission of students and others to make copies in the galleries, which rules and regulations, with any changes made from time to time, must be appended to the general report which the Director is to make annually to the Treasury.

TRAVELLING AGENT.

In order to enable the Trustees and Director the more easily to acquire fine pictures that may be offered for sale on the Continent, my Lords propose to appoint "a travelling agent," with a salary of 300*l.* a year, whose duties will be to visit the private collections of distinguished families abroad, ascertaining and describing the contents, and obtaining the earliest information of any intended sale. The agent will be paid his travelling and personal expenses on a scale hereafter to be fixed.

The officer next in rank to the Director will be

THE KEEPER AND SECRETARY.

The Committee of the House of Commons recommend the abolition of the office of "Keeper," but, as it is essential to the safe custody of the valuable collection and the security of the building that a responsible person should reside at the Gallery, my Lords are of opinion that the functions of Secretary to the Director and the Board of Trustees should be performed by an officer who is also well qualified to perform the duties of Keeper, and that thus a joint office of Keeper and Secretary should be created.

The Keeper and Secretary will have a salary of 750*l.* a year. He will reside in the building, occupying the rooms heretofore occupied by the sub-keeper and secretary, with the present Board-room as his office; he will be allowed fuel for the office-room only, and the conditions in regard to taxes payable for the private rooms he occupies will remain unaltered.

This officer will have a most important duty to perform, which will impose upon him, for years to come, great labour and much research. In a Paper on the future management of the National Gallery, published in the Appendix to the Report of the Committee, at page 788, are the following remarks:

"The idea of a catalogue of the Masters who might, sooner or later, be represented in a National Gallery, has occurred to many; but the actual formation of such a list has only been recently undertaken, according to a plan suggested by his Royal Highness Prince Albert, and for his Royal Highness's use. With reference to that list, I may add, that the Catalogue of the Italian Masters was prepared by myself, and that relating to the other Schools by Mr. Wornum. The series cannot be considered complete; there are probably both omissions and redundancies; but it may at least be taken as the groundwork for such a guide.

"I proceed to consider the question of efficient superintendence—an object to be best accomplished, I think, on two principles—a division of labour, and individual responsibility. The qualifications for connoisseurship are various, and are rarely united in one and the same person. The connoisseur should first possess the artist's knowledge with regard to pictorial merit in an absolute sense, independently of names of Masters and historical associations. He should, in the next place, be thoroughly acquainted with the history of Schools, and the practice, including the changes of style, of individual painters. He should possess an extensive knowledge of the principal works of the Masters, and of the vicissitudes of those works, in regard to change of place, possessors, and price. The connoisseur should further be acquainted with the works of the imitators of such Masters; he should be aware of the number of repetitions of a given Master's productions, with more or less assistance from scholars, and should ascertain which is the best of those repetitions.

"This acquaintance with the examples of painting is generally acquired—more or less accurately, and never completely—by long experience only, and certainly cannot be acquired without experience; but it has always to be learnt afresh by every new student, with very little assistance from the labours of previous investigators. In order to amass and preserve an important part at least of the knowledge necessary for these objects, it would be desirable to form, by degrees, catalogues of the works of all the more distinguished Masters; on the principle of Passavant's Catalogue of the Works of Raphael (the most satisfactory both in plan and execution of any list of the kind). Other works having the same object would be of assistance; such as Orsini's Enumeration of the Works of Pietro Perugino; Rigollot's Catalogue of those of Leonardo da Vinci; the Catalogues of Waagen, Michiels, and others, of the Works of Van Eyck; Ticozzi's Description of those of Titian; Pungileoni's List of Correggio's Works; Stirling's

Catalogues of the works of Velasquez and Murillo; and, last not least, Smith's Catalogue Raisonné.

"A labour of this description would be best undertaken by a Secretary, who might receive, in addition to his salary, an occasional allowance for travelling, with a view to rectify and enlarge his catalogues, and to collect information respecting pictures for sale. Such a secretary should be freed from the ordinary duties of keeping minutes of proceedings and conducting unimportant correspondence, although he should be fully cognizant of all such transactions, and might, in especial cases, undertake such duties himself; an assistant secretary would, however, be indispensable.

"A tabular form, like the following, might be adopted for the catalogues. Should the observations be too copious to be so inserted (as might often happen in the case of 'Remarks'), a reference might be made to one of the volumes intended to contain such fuller notices; among those more circumstantial memoranda there should be references to all writers of authority who describe the picture or trace its history. In such notes, also, the state of the picture, at a given time, should, as far as description can answer the purpose, be recorded; and if the work has not been engraved, a description of the composition should be given, and should be referred to under the head 'Subject.' The known prices of pictures, whether disposed of at sales or by private contract, should, in like manner, be recorded. Lost pictures should also be noticed, with references to the authors who describe them; thus, several Giorgiones, enumerated by Ridolfi and others, are at present unknown, but may not impossibly yet come to light. Lastly, destroyed pictures; such as those of Titian and others, destroyed by fire in the Ducal Palace at Venice, in 1576, should be described; as original sketches, or even copies of such works, would possess a more than ordinary interest.

"Name of Master (for example) PIETRO PERUGINO.

"1. Number.—1-15. An Altarpiece, originally in the Church of S. Pietro Maggiore, at Perugia, ornamented with a lunette above, and with smaller pictures in the predella and pilasters. Two circular pictures over the adjoining doors of the choir formed part of the decoration. The predella contained five pictures, the pilasters six; making, with the lunette, the two circular pictures, and the altarpiece itself, 15 pictures.

"2. Subject.—Subject of the altarpiece, the Ascension. The lunette contained a representation of the Almighty with two Angels. The subjects of the three centre pictures of the predella were the Adoration of the Kings, the Baptism, and the Resurrection; the remaining two were half figures of S. Costanzo and S. Ercolano. The pilasters were adorned with half figures of the following saints: S. Benedetto, S. Scolastica, S. Mauro, S. Placido, S. Flavia, and S. Pietro Abate, founder, and first abbot of the convent. The two circular pictures contained figures of David and Isaiah.

"3. Size.—Altarpiece, 10 feet 9½ inches high, 8 feet 9½ inches wide. The three subjects of the predella, each 1 foot 3½ inches high, 2 feet 2½ inches wide. The half figures of saints, 11½ inches high, 10½ inches wide. Measures of the others unknown.

"4. On what Material painted.—All originally on wood. The altarpiece is now transferred to cloth, as are also the three half figures of saints in the Vatican Gallery.

"5. In what Method.—Oil.

"6. Inscription and Date; Peculiar Marks.—

"7. In what Place, Gallery, or Collection.—The altarpiece is in the Public Gallery at Lyons. The three predella pictures, from the New Testament, are in the Public Gallery at Rouen, where they are incorrectly attributed to Raphael. Three half figures of saints, S. Benedetto, S. Placido, and S. Flavia, are in the Gallery of the Vatican. The other five half figures of saints returned to Perugia, and are in the sacristy of S. Pietro Maggiore. Where the other three pictures now are, the lunette and the two circular pictures of Prophets, is unknown.

"8. Repetitions, where.—An inferior repetition of the principal subject, the Ascension, altered only in some colours of the draperies, is in the Duomo of Borgo S. Sepolchro.

"9. Copies, where.—Copies in water colour, of the two round pictures of Prophets, are in the sacristy of S. Pietro Maggiore, at Perugia. The same figures were also copied by Raphael when young, in his sketch-book preserved in the Venetian Academy.

"12. General History. Remarks.—Painted 1495, for S. Pietro Maggiore, in Perugia. Removed from the high altar to a chapel in the same church in 1751. When in the chapel (if not before), the pictures of the predella and pilasters were protected with glass; what became of the lunette and the two circular pictures is unknown; the rest were taken to Paris during the French occupation of Italy, in 1797. The altarpiece was ultimately, in 1815, presented to Lyons by Pope Pius VII., when the smaller pictures, with the exception of the three at Rouen, returned to Italy. See also vol. p. "

The

* Each work should be numbered for the sake of easy reference. Pictures might be enumerated as the historical materials come to hand; a chronological order is unnecessary in such notes, although it might be attended to in a catalogue formed from them. In cases like the present, where an altar decoration consisted of several pictures, the number of works should be specified.

The great and useful work thus detailed will be compiled by the Keeper and Secretary, under the supervision of the Director. The other duties of the Keeper and Secretary will be to attend the meetings of the Board, to draw up and prepare the minutes, and to conduct all the necessary official correspondence.

Any recommendations relating to the establishment, made by the Secretary to the Board, must be approved by the Director before they are so submitted.

He will receive his instructions from the Director, and must implicitly follow them in every respect as regards the arrangements, both in Trafalgar-square and Marlborough House.

He will prepare proper pay-lists for the Paymaster-general, and will transmit to the Commissioners of Audit monthly statements and a yearly account, properly vouched.

The admission of artists and others, to copy pictures, will be superintended by the Keeper, under the regulations to be issued by the Director.

The compilation and continuation of the Historical Catalogues of the pictures forming the National Gallery in Trafalgar-square and Marlborough House (which are sold to the public) will be undertaken by the Keeper in his capacity of Secretary, as a part of his ordinary duties, subject to the revision and approval of the Director.

As regards the sale of catalogues, my Lords are of opinion that the course followed in other cases should be adopted here, and that in lieu of applying the proceeds of the sale of the catalogues in diminution of the charge for the National Gallery, the sums so received should be paid to Her Majesty's Paymaster-general at Whitehall, who will pay the same into the Exchequer, and the whole charge will henceforward be voted by the House of Commons on Estimate.

My Lords are also of opinion, that it is not necessary to open an account at the Bank of England for the National Gallery, as has heretofore been done. The sums voted can be imprested to the Paymaster-general, who will make all payments on lists or orders to be furnished him by the Keeper and Secretary, countersigned by the Director; and the office of the Paymaster being in Whitehall, close to Trafalgar-square, no inconvenience will be likely to arise.

The Keeper and Secretary will be authorised, with the sanction of the Director, to make demands on the Comptroller of the Stationery Office, according to established regulations, for the necessary paper, printed forms, &c.

For any repairs or alteration to the building, or for furniture, or other services falling within the department of the Commissioners of Public Works, it will be necessary that an application should be made in writing to this Board by the Director himself, and not in the first instance to the Office of Works.

TRAVELLING CHARGES.

In the event of its being desirable that the Director or Keeper should travel with a view to the interests of the Gallery, a statement of the object will be submitted to the Trustees in the first instance, and afterwards to the Treasury, for the sanction of my Lords, with the remarks of the Trustees, if any, thereon; and if approved by their Lordships, they shall define in their sanction the extent to which the costs of such journey will be allowed, in accordance with the rules in analogous cases. At the conclusion of any such journey undertaken, a special report in respect thereto shall be made by the Director or Keeper, as the case may be.

As regards the "Travelling Agent," it is probable that he will be absent from this country during the greater part of the year, and my Lords have fixed his salary at a moderate rate, in consideration of the additional allowance to which he will be entitled while absent on his professional duties on the Continent.

This officer will be required to keep a diary, which can be produced when called for, in order to satisfy his employers that he has been sufficiently industrious and active, and he will also be required to present a report, at the conclusion of each journey, of his proceedings.

As regards "the Accountant," my Lords are of opinion that it will be better not to make a special appointment, but to employ some experienced Treasury officer to establish a proper system of account, and periodically to give his assistance in carrying out the same, for which services he can be specially remunerated.

As regards "the attendants," my Lords approve of the following :—

In Trafalgar-square,

- 3 Curators.
- 1 Porter.
- 2 Assistant Porters.
- 1 Housemaid.
- 1 Assistant Housemaid.
- 1 Messenger.
- 1 Policeman.

At Marlborough House,

2 Curators.
2 Assistant Porters.
2 Assistant Housemaids.

LETTER from the Earl of Ellesmere to James Wilson, Esq.

(Referred to in the Director's Report, page 34.)

Sir,

Worsley, Manchester, 3 August 1855.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge your letter, inclosing a copy of a Treasury Minute, of March 27, relating to the future management of the National Gallery, and which also does me the honour of inviting me to continue as a Trustee of that institution.

I am sensible of the honour conferred by that invitation, but, for the following reasons, I think I shall best consult the advantage of the public service by declining it. I infer from the recommendation (No. 4) of the Committee, on whose Report the Minute of their Lordships is founded, that the number of present Trustees is considered, if not excessive, more than sufficiently numerous. During Sir Robert Peel's administration I thought it my duty to represent to him that the state of my health rendered my attendance on the Board so casual and precarious as to make my retirement advisable.

Sir Robert wished me to remain, at least till some general measure of revision or reorganisation should be effected. Such measure being now in progress, and the reasons for my representation to him having unhappily lost none of their weight in the interval, I consider it obvious that a diminution of the number of Trustees, a thing in itself desirable if not necessary, may be commenced with great convenience in my person.

I have troubled you with these details, unimportant in themselves, to avoid incurring the erroneous construction that I disapprove of any part of the contemplated arrangements, with respect either to those arrangements themselves, or the individuals designated. In both respects they appear to me unexceptionable, and well calculated to secure the important purposes for which they are devised.

I have, &c.

(signed) Egerton Ellesmere.

Appendix, No. 4.

REGULATIONS FOR OFFICERS AND ATTENDANTS.

DUTIES OF THE KEEPER AND SECRETARY.

General Instructions.

THE National Gallery comprehends not only the establishment in Trafalgar-square, but a branch establishment in part of Marlborough House, where, for the present, a portion of the national collection is placed. General regulations respecting the National Gallery are to be understood to have reference to both establishments.

The chief responsibilities of the Keeper and Secretary are, to attend to the safety of the buildings; the conservation of the works of art, in so far as the means employed for such conservation may belong to the Keeper's prescribed duties; the cleanliness of the apartments and of the buildings generally, within and without; the ventilation and due temperature, according to the season, of the rooms in which the national pictures are placed; the superintendence, according to regulations, of the curators, assistants, and servants belonging to, or occasionally employed on, the establishments; and the maintenance of order among the public visitors, as well as among the artists or others present in the rooms on private days. The details of the above duties are hereinafter stated.

The ordinary official duties of the Keeper and Secretary are, "to attend the meetings of the Board, to draw up and prepare the Minutes, and to conduct all the necessary official correspondence." (See Treasury Minute, 27th March 1855, page 43.)

As regards the accounts, "he will prepare proper pay-lists for the Paymaster-General, and will transmit to the Commissioners of Audit monthly statements and a yearly statement, properly vouched." (Treasury Minute above referred to, page 43.) For the preparation of such monthly and yearly statements, he will keep regular accounts of all expenditure and receipts, according to a plan to be approved by the accountant employed by the Treasury for such purpose, and whose duty it will be "to establish a proper system of account, and periodically to give his assistance in carrying out the same." (Treasury Minute, page 43.)

The admission of artists and others, to copy pictures, will be superintended by the Keeper, under the regulations hereinafter stated.

The historical catalogues sold in the Gallery will receive additions and corrections, inserted, as required, by the Keeper, subject to the revision of the Director.

The Register of the works of the principal Masters in the various Schools of Painting, will be compiled according to a tabular form similar to that cited in the Treasury Minute before referred to, page 39; and, in general, in the order, as regards the selection of schools, indicated in the instructions on this subject.

Safety of the Buildings.

The Keeper is referred to a letter on this subject, dated 14th August 1855, and addressed by the Director to the Secretary of the Treasury. Whatever precautions may, in consequence of that representation, have been adopted in the building in Trafalgar-square, it is obvious that much will still depend on the care and vigilance of the inmates.

The Keeper will see that the flues are cleansed periodically, and at such intervals as circumstances may require; and in this the directions of the Surveyor from the Office of Works, aided by the experience of the late sub-keeper, or other residents, should be strictly followed. The fire kept up during the colder season for the purpose of conveying heated water through the iron tubes by means of which the principal apartments are warmed, will require to be duly inspected by the Keeper during such season; and the flue connected with such fireplace or furnace may require to be more frequently cleansed than the other flues.

The Keeper will occasionally inspect and give his directions respecting the fires used by the resident servants, including his own servants and the members of his own family; and, having the safety of the building always in view, will regulate as far as necessary all details respecting fires, lights, and the use of inflammable materials.

The Keeper will not sleep out of the apartments he occupies in the National Gallery without acquainting the Director, nor without appointing a deputy, to be approved by the Director, subject to the sanction of the Trustees. During the absence of the Keeper for needful relaxation, his ordinary duties will be undertaken by the Director.

General Cleanliness, Ventilation, &c.

The Keeper will see that the rooms are well and thoroughly swept in the mornings after every public day, and also on Monday mornings. It appears that, from the construction of the rooms and the mode of lighting, the evils of a close atmosphere in summer are more difficult to guard against than cold in winter. The Keeper will take all safe means in his power to insure due freshness and the circulation of air; he will see that the openings in the windows, contrived for ventilation, work freely, and will, when necessary, cause the windows also to be partially or entirely opened. An attention to the means of insuring due ventilation is more especially requisite in the smaller rooms. The Keeper will attend to the state of the skylights, with a view to the proper lighting of the pictures.

In the colder months the Keeper will see that the apparatus for warming the apartments is kept in order, and will take care that all the rooms are, as far as possible, warmed in an equal degree.

Conservation of the Works of Art.

With regard to the conservation and display of the works of art, the following directions are to be observed:

The Keeper will frequently inspect the national pictures, and should he detect in any of them any unusual appearance, any symptoms of decay, or any accidental injury, he will at once report the same to the Director. So, with regard to the satisfactory display of the works, he will notice when the surface appears too dull, whether from the effect of chilled varnish or from other causes, and will report the result of his observation accordingly.

The Keeper will see that the blinds for excluding the sun's rays from the pictures are kept in repair, and will direct the attendants to be very careful to close them as occasion may require, so that no picture shall ever be exposed to the action of the sun's rays.

For the dusting of the surface of such of the pictures as are not protected with glass, and for the dusting of frames, soft full feather-brushes should be used. The operation may require to be repeated daily in the most crowded season, and in warm, dry weather; but it should not be repeated unnecessarily, since, in damp weather, the surface of such pictures as are sound may require careful wiping rather than dusting, and this operation should be undertaken only by the person employed by the Director. In the instance of cracked pictures, which may have a tendency to chip, even the operation of dusting may sometimes require a no less careful hand. Pictures so cracked as to have a tendency to chip should, if their size admits of it, be protected with glass, previously to more effectual means being taken to arrest the progress of decay.

The Keeper will see that the glasses by which some of the pictures are protected are cleansed as often as may be necessary.

No picture should on any account be varnished nor any repairs whatsoever undertaken by the Keeper, or by his order, without the special sanction of the Director.

Arrangement

Arrangement of the Pictures.

The arrangement of the pictures forming the national collection will at a future time require especial consideration. The chief duty of the Keeper, under existing circumstances, will be to assist the Director in devising means for providing sufficient space, consistently with the least possible sacrifice as regards position and light, of the principal works.

Among the details connected with the arrangement of the pictures, the perfect security of the fastenings and supports, the firmness of the boarded facing of the walls, and the safest contrivances for moving large pictures, will require attention on the part of the Keeper and Director.

Admission of Artists and others to Copy.

Painters, engravers, and others are admitted to copy in the National Gallery only on the private days, except under extraordinary circumstances and by special permission of the Trustees.

The number of copyists in oil, at one and the same time, in Trafalgar-square and in Marlborough House, is restricted to 70, of whom 20 may, as heretofore, be students of the Royal Academy.

The list of those copying, as well as the list, when full, of those who are to copy next in order, is to be appended in the hall.

The supernumeraries to this list are non-resident foreigners, native artists residing in the provinces and visiting London for a short time only, and such privileged persons, distinguished amateurs, or artists as have hitherto been admitted without question. It appears that the number of such supernumeraries has rarely exceeded 10; should applications of the kind increase to twice that amount, the Keeper will consult the Director as to the measures to be in such case adopted.

The ordinary or professional copyists in oil will be permitted to pursue their studies in the Gallery for the space of three months, after which time they will make room for those of the next list. Artists or others may, on application, be readmitted to copy after an interval of three months from the expiration of the term previously granted.

The number of artists or others admissible to copy from the national pictures in water-colours is unlimited, and each applicant is admitted by a ticket, signed by the Keeper. Although an inconvenient influx of students would appear to be probable from this regulation, yet the experience of many years shows that the number of students in water-colour painting rarely exceeds that of the students in oil painting.

The mode of admission to copy, as regards professional students, both in oil and in water-colours, is to send to the Keeper a written application, with the name and address of the applicant, together with a specimen executed by such applicant, and bearing the same name. Should such specimen be approved, the name of the individual, if proposing to copy in oil, will be inserted in the list accordingly. In the case of students in water-colours, the specimen submitted being approved, a ticket will be issued to the applicant by the Keeper.

Supernumeraries may be admitted, according to the circumstances in each case, by specimen and letter, by letter only, or by verbal communication with the Keeper. Should the Trustees or the Director be disposed to recommend supernumeraries, the Keeper should be first consulted as to the possibility of admitting them.

On a second, or on any subsequent application, by a student in oil painting, after an interval of three months from his former term, no specimen will be required.

No specimen will be required from artists or others whose ability in drawing and painting is sufficiently known.

The Keeper will note, as accurately as he can, what pictures are copied within a given term.

A scrupulous attention to cleanliness and order will be required from the artists and others admitted to copy.

Private Days.

For the present, the days allotted for students to copy are Friday and Saturday in each week, the vacation and one or two other days excepted. On Fridays and Saturdays the entrance door under the portico will be closed; artists and others privileged to attend will be alone admitted; but exceptions may be made, at the discretion of the Keeper, in favour of persons, whether foreigners or not, who may visit London for a short time, and also in favour of those connoisseurs who may have especial reasons for wishing to inspect or study certain pictures without interruption.

Artists, connoisseurs, or others wishing to inspect a picture near, or, when there is a glass before a picture, wishing to have the glass for a time removed, may be allowed to make such inspection, on application to the Keeper, and at his discretion, on the private days.

Should the Keeper deem it expedient, under extraordinary circumstances, to grant such permission on public days, he will, if possible, appoint an early hour for such inspection.

Closing of the Gallery.

There is a vacation of six weeks, comprehending part of September and part of October, during which time the Gallery is closed both to artists and to the public. The Gallery is also closed on Christmas Day, on Good Friday, and on Sundays. The Gallery is closed to go—IV. the

the public and open only to artists and others for the purposes of study on Fridays and Saturdays, with the above exceptions.

On occasions when crowds are likely to assemble in the streets, during any extraordinary ceremony, or during periods of excitement, the Keeper, with the sanction of the Trustees, or, when there is not time to consult the Trustees, with the sanction of the Director, will close the Gallery.

Changes in the position of pictures, as on occasions when recently acquired pictures are to be placed in the Gallery, should take place, as far as possible, on the private days; and the Keeper will, when necessary, and according to the instructions of the Director, close the room or rooms in which the workmen are employed for such purpose. Should copyists in the Gallery be, from this cause, interrupted in their labours, their term may be prolonged according to the day or days they may have so lost.

Catalogues.

The regulation respecting the sale of catalogues has been prescribed by the Treasury. No alteration should be made in either of the books without the sanction of the Director.

Catalogue of Works of Painters.

As the formation of a catalogue of the works of distinguished painters may at first seem an interminable labour, it will be necessary to explain the objects contemplated, and to point out the means of subdividing, and for the present, of limiting, the undertaking.

The proposed catalogue, whatever may be its ultimate or collateral uses, is at first intended to promote a knowledge of facts and material evidences, relating to such works of the principal masters as would be desirable acquisitions for the National Gallery.

This general purpose is again modified by the nature of the collection as it now exists; by the expediency of supplying manifest deficiencies, and of procuring fine specimens of such periods or schools as have not hitherto been sufficiently represented.

At present it is generally felt that the best illustrations of the rise and progress of art are to be sought in the Italian Schools. The time may come when, as in the present collection at Berlin, the early Italian masters shall be so well represented, that, except in rare cases, the search for choice examples of art may take a very different direction; but at present the National Gallery is comparatively deficient in such specimens, and hence the chief object proposed may be considered to be defined by this circumstance, and by the above views.

The Italian Schools, as illustrated by specimens of their earlier efforts and of their perfect productions, will then, at this time and probably for some years to come, furnish the principal materials for the catalogues. Among those schools, again, a preference will be given to the Florentine, the Venetian, and the Lombard Schools. Among the schools of central Italy, connected, by vicinity at least, with Florence, the Umbrian, the Sienese, and the early Bolognese will claim their share of attention. With the Venetian, the Schools of Padua, Verona, and others allied in taste to the School of Venice, will require to be considered; while the Lombard will include the Schools of Milan and Parma, and those connected with them in style. The Roman School may require less attention, partly because some of the followers of Raphael may be classed with other schools, and partly because the catalogue of Raphael's works, as given by Passavant, may be said to be almost, if not quite, complete.

Lastly, as regards periods; both the earliest and the excellent masters are necessarily few: the commencement and the consummation of a School are as points. The ages of development lie between them, and in those periods the greater number of those interesting works, by which the progress of art is traced, are to be found. On these principles it is therefore recommended that the catalogue should begin with Florence, and that the details should, with the exceptions indicated, be chiefly limited to the works of masters of the latter half of the 15th and commencement of the 16th century.

Another principle, before adverted to, remains to be considered. The object of the catalogue is to collect and record historical and material details respecting pictures which would be desirable and possible acquisitions for the National Gallery.

The question of the possibility of acquisition, therefore, again reduces the number of works requiring to be fully registered. The sale of the choicest pictures in public galleries could only happen in rare and, it is to be hoped, improbable national disturbances. Such pictures may be, therefore, less particularly described; the only ground for describing them at all (with a view to the objects contemplated) would be to complete the lists of the works of given masters, and to furnish the means of estimating the relative merit of repetitions and copies.

Pictures in churches are not to be regarded so entirely beyond the possibility of purchase. Impoverished fraternities sometimes find it necessary to sell their valuable works of art; and opportunities now and then occur of obtaining fine altarpieces in this way. The same observation is applicable to pictures in public buildings and social establishments. Such works, therefore, with the above limitations, should be described.

But the collections of pictures most likely to be disposed of, especially in Italy, are those which are in private hands; such collections being very commonly sold and dispersed on the death of the head of the family for the more convenient division of the property. It is therefore especially desirable to keep registers of such collections, and this object will necessarily interfere, more or less, with the principles of selection above proposed.

The

The system to be adopted will therefore be as follows: to take a given Italian gallery, the sale of which may be either imminent or probable. To select from that gallery the finest examples of the Italian Schools (not omitting very extraordinary specimens of any schools); to begin by describing the best works of the Florentine School,—the order of the other schools depending on the excellence of the specimens. It is plain that actual inspection and examination by a competent judge can alone dictate such a selection. When the selection is made, the existing catalogues of such galleries might furnish very useful details; but as the excellence or desirableness of the work is the first requisite, a careful inspection would be indispensable. In the absence of such authentic details respecting a particular collection or any portion of it, inquiry would be directed elsewhere, and the compilation of the catalogue would proceed on the principles and in the order above defined.

This general system, even with sufficient materials, might be partially interrupted at any time by the necessity of noting, without delay, any accurate particulars respecting extraordinary works. The prepared tables will be always ready for such notices, and it is recommended that all important information should be either entered in them at once, or that if questionable, it should be recorded in note books for subsequent verification.

Remarkable pictures exposed for sale, not being purchased at the time for the nation, might be described with all particulars, as the opportunity would be convenient for the necessary examination. Such pictures can, obviously, always be traced from and to a given collection; the more important record being the mention of the collection to which it is transferred.

The order of importance in the selection of works for description therefore is,—private collections; churches and establishments; public galleries. And the principle of selection in any one of such classes is,—first, to reduce the specimens to the most excellent or the most desirable; then (for the present) to begin with the Italian Schools, and in those schools to begin with the Florentine. With regard to periods, the selection should be confined, with due exceptions, to the latter half of the 15th and commencement of the 16th century.

The leading principles of selection in the vast labyrinth of painters and their works may be more generally expressed as follows: 1. The possibility of acquisition. 2. Excellence, or desirableness. 3. The school, period, and master.

Control of Attendants.

The Keeper has the control and superintendence of the curators, attendants, and servants employed in the National Gallery.

During crowded periods of the year, when the number of curators either in Trafalgar-square or in Marlborough House may not be deemed sufficient, the Keeper will, at his discretion, direct the messenger to lend his assistance by attending in the rooms. The Keeper is also authorised, with the approval of the Director, and when there is time to consult them, with the sanction of the Trustees, to employ one or more additional policemen for a limited time, and as circumstances may require.

For temporary duties of the description referred to, and for the preservation of order, policemen are to be preferred to civilians.

In the event of the absence of any one of the attendants from illness or other unavoidable cause, the place of such attendant should be supplied, according to the nature of the duties to be performed, either by another attendant, by a policeman, or by some proper substitute.

In cases of misconduct on the part of any attendant, the Keeper will, according to the circumstances of the case, either admonish the individual, or report the case to the Director, or, with the consent of the Director, represent it to the Trustees.

3d March 1856.

INSTRUCTIONS for the "TRAVELLING AGENT" for the NATIONAL GALLERY.

Sir,

London, August 1855.

I BEG to transmit to you some instructions, sanctioned by the Trustees of the National Gallery, respecting your duties as Travelling Agent under my directions.

In accordance with the directions in the Treasury Minute, dated the 27th March 1855, of which you have a copy, you will chiefly select for recommendation good specimens of the Italian Schools of painting, including specimens of the earlier masters; not, however, omitting to notice and describe fine examples of other schools, according to opportunities.

The chief particulars required in the description of pictures with a view to the objects proposed, are, the master, or at all events the school, the subject, dimensions, and price. Next to these, the method in which the work is executed, state of preservation, and external conditions generally. The history or provenienza of the picture should also be ascertained as far as possible. Other remarks may sometimes be important; such as a comparison with other known examples of the master; and a comparison with duplicates, copies, engravings, drawings, and descriptions.

The object being the acquisition of pictures, your observations and reports should be chiefly confined to collections, or single pictures, that are, or may hereafter be, for sale, as distinguished from works in public galleries, which, except in the improbable event of great national changes, or from other extraordinary causes, can never be dispersed. At the same time, as the study of fine and unquestionable specimens by a given master, in public galleries, will be a means of verifying and estimating other works by the same master which may be for sale, you are to understand that such study and comparison will be among the proper objects of your mission.

This being understood, you will attend to the more precise definition of your duties in the Minute referred to, p. 41. You will visit "the private collections of distinguished families abroad, ascertaining and describing the contents, and obtaining the earliest information of any intended sale." Besides the collections referred to, your researches will include other good collections, or good single specimens, if for sale, or likely at any future time to be so; not omitting to examine eligible specimens in the hands of dealers or others.

The general object of your travelling will be "to enable the Trustees and Director the more easily to acquire fine pictures that may be offered for sale on the Continent." (Treasury Minute, p. 41.) You are, however, also to understand that your researches may occasionally be made in any part of the United Kingdom, as circumstances may require.

In giving instructions respecting the packing and transmission of any pictures from the Continent, you will direct the agents to inform Messrs. Mc Cracken, 7, Old Jewry, London, of the expected time of departure of the packages, name of vessel, or mode of conveyance, so that the insurance of the pictures may be effected in London at the proper time. The value of the pictures to be insured will be communicated to the London agents by me.

On your return you will be required to furnish a report of your proceedings, for the information of the Trustees.

In the event of your purchasing any pictures on your own account, it is understood that such pictures are to be offered in the first instance to the National Gallery, at the cost price.

Your duties when in England, will be to assist the Director in inspecting pictures or otherwise, and to assist the Keeper and Secretary in the compilation of his Register of Works of the best Masters.

M. Otto Mündler.

I am, &c.
(signed) C. L. Eastlake.

ATTENDANTS in the NATIONAL GALLERY.

General Regulations.

THE attendants employed in the National Gallery, including the branch establishment in Marlborough House, are under the immediate control and superintendence of the Keeper.

The several attendants are required to make themselves acquainted with the regulations, sanctioned by the Trustees, in which their special duties are defined.

DUTIES of CURATORS of the NATIONAL GALLERY, in Trafalgar-square and in Marlborough House.

Periods and Hours of Attendance.

THE Curators are required to be at their posts by 10 o'clock in the morning, and to remain till six o'clock in the evening in summer, and till dusk in winter; the hours for closing the Gallery varying according to the season of the year.

The Curators are not to absent themselves all at once, for the purpose of taking refreshment, in the middle of the day, but will absent themselves, for such purpose, by a mutual arrangement, in succession. The time allowed for such purpose is not to exceed half an hour for each person. On crowded days this time might require to be abridged; and the Curators should, in general, endeavour not to quit their posts during the most crowded hours of the day. The duties of a Curator, who may be absent from the above cause are to be performed, as far as possible, by one of the Curators who may remain.

There is a vacation of six weeks during part of September and part of October. The Gallery is also closed on Christmas Day, Good Friday, and Sundays; and, with the sanction of the Trustees, on extraordinary occasions.

Rooms allotted to each Curator.

The three Curators in Trafalgar-square will, under ordinary circumstances, give their attention to different rooms, as follows:

Mr. Wildsmith will attend to the large western room.

Mr. Rimer will attend to the two rooms next in order, called the second and third rooms.

Mr. Baily will attend to the two rooms at the head of the stairs.

The two Curators at Marlborough House, Mr. Rudland and Mr. Palmer, will divide between them the care of the rooms containing the Vernon Collection and other pictures of the English School, so that every room may be visited frequently by one or the other. Should further assistance be deemed necessary at Marlborough House, during crowded periods of the year, the Keeper has authority to take measures accordingly. Mr. Rudland, the Curator who sleeps in Marlborough House, is required to be especially attentive at all times times to the safety of that portion of the building which at present forms part of the National Gallery.

During crowded days, such as periodical holidays, and during crowded hours of the day, the Curators are required to be especially vigilant. In Trafalgar-square, the policeman will, on such occasions, assist Mr. Rimer and Mr. Baily by attending to the two rooms at the head of the stairs; Mr. Baily then giving his attention to the third room, and Mr. Rimer giving his attention to the second room. Should further assistance be deemed necessary, the Keeper will, at his discretion, direct the messenger to be in attendance in the rooms, or will take other measures, as occasion may require.

Ordinary Duties of Curators.

No visitor is allowed to touch a picture, frame, or inscription; the Curators are required to be particularly attentive to prevent any infringement of this regulation.

No visitor is allowed to go within the railing before the pictures. The Curators are to prevent children from getting under the railing and so approaching the pictures.

Visitors not being permitted to take umbrellas or parasols into the Gallery, nor to carry sticks, except in case of infirmity, the Curators will direct any individuals who, unobserved by the porters, may have transgressed such regulation, to leave their sticks, umbrellas, or parasols in the hall. The same regulation is to be extended to all articles, such as tools, &c., which, as they may be used to point at pictures, may be in danger of touching the surface.

No person in a state of intoxication is to be admitted; and if the condition of any such person should have been unnoticed by the attendants in the hall, the Curators on observing it will give notice to the policeman.

Visitors who may be seen opening parcels of provisions and sitting down as if to a meal, are to be informed that such acts are, by the regulations, not permitted.

No visitors are to be allowed to carry or produce bottles, or to throw about any refuse. No smoking is to be allowed. The same regulations are to be observed throughout the precincts of the building.

In cases of repeated inattention to the notifications of the Curators, or in case of any indecorous behaviour or gross misconduct on the part of visitors, the Curators will inform the policeman, and report the same to the Keeper without delay.

The Curators, under the general instructions of the Keeper, are to see that the ventilators and, if necessary, the windows are kept open whenever the air in the rooms is found to be heated, close, and unpleasant.

The Curators are also required to observe if the sun's rays fall at any time on the pictures, and, in that case, to remedy the evil, if possible at once.

The Curators are required to point out to the Keeper any imperfection in the windows, blinds, ventilators, heating apparatus, or other details coming under their observation in the performance of their duties; as well as any recent and obvious defective appearance in the surface of any of the pictures, glasses, or frames; and any defects or injuries in the furniture.

In the event of any artist, connoisseur, or other visitor wishing to inspect a picture near, or, when there is a glass before a picture, wishing to have the glass, for a time, removed, such person should be directed to apply to the Keeper; it being understood that, except under extraordinary circumstances, such inspection can take place only on the private days.

Visitors who may be seen making sketches from the pictures, on public days, if so occupied for a very short time only, are not to be prevented; but should they remain long or return to the same occupation repeatedly, so as to incommode ordinary visitors, they are to be informed by the Curators that certain days are set apart for such studies, and that application for admission on such days should be made to the Keeper.

Sale of Catalogues.

The sale of catalogues is entrusted, in Trafalgar-square, to Mr. Wildsmith; in Marlborough House to Mr. Rudland. The Curators are required to explain, to visitors who may ask for information, the abbreviations in inscriptions under the pictures, and the mode of using the catalogues.

DUTIES of the PORTER, Trafalgar-square.

THE porter resides in the building. He has to take charge of letters, and answer personal applications, whether the Gallery be open or closed. He is to open and shut the doors at the appointed hours.

The porter has especial charge of the hall, and is required to keep the hall and its furniture properly swept. During the hours when the Gallery is open he is required to be in attendance to take charge of the sticks, umbrellas, or parasols of visitors, as well as any articles which, by being used to point at pictures, might be in danger of touching the surface. He will see that no sticks are taken into the Gallery except in case of lameness or infirmity.

Should any visitors appear to be in a state of intoxication, notice should be given to the policeman, so that such persons may be excluded.

The porter is to lend his assistance in moving pictures, steps, ladders, and furniture, when required by the Keeper so to do.

DUTIES of the ASSISTANT PORTERS, Trafalgar-square.

THE assistant porter who has not the charge of the heating apparatus is required to fulfil the duties of the porter in his absence. He is also to attend when required in the Gallery. He is to be at his post before 10 o'clock in the morning, and is to remain until the Gallery is closed.

The assistant porter, acting as stoker, has especial charge of the heating apparatus, and is to supply the Keeper's offices with coals. He has also charge of the shutters of the skylights, which are to be closed immediately after the locking up of the Gallery, and opened before eight o'clock in the morning. He is required to sweep daily the steps and pavement of the portico, from the entrance door to the outer gate, and to cleanse the outside mats and scrapers.

The assistant porters are to help to take charge of sticks, umbrellas, &c. They are also to assist when required in moving pictures, and in carrying and moving steps, ladders, &c., for the service of the Gallery.

DUTIES of the ASSISTANT PORTERS, Marlborough House.

THE two assistant porters at Marlborough House are required to perform the ordinary duties of porter there, as specified in the description of the duties of the porter in Trafalgar-square; also taking charge of the sticks, umbrellas, &c., of visitors. They are to be at their posts from 10 o'clock in the morning until 6 o'clock in summer, and until dusk in winter. They are required to attend to the cleanliness of the hall, which is to be swept daily before 10 o'clock in the morning. They are to assist when required in moving pictures, and in carrying and moving steps, ladders, &c.

DUTIES of the MESSENGER, Trafalgar-square.

THE messenger is required to be in attendance daily at the Gallery before 10 o'clock. When not required by the Director or by the Keeper as messenger, he will attend in the offices of the Gallery as the Keeper's general assistant, taking charge of the office fires, attending to the lamps, &c. He will also keep a register of the applications and names of artists and others desiring to copy in the Gallery, and will write the lists and notices to be appended in the hall. He will occasionally assist the Curators by attending in the rooms in which the national pictures are placed, and will perform other occasional service connected with the business of the establishment, as required.

3 March 1856.

Appendix, No. 5.

DETAILS respecting Pictures recently Purchased for the NATIONAL GALLERY, and referred to in the Report.

1. Cosimo Rosselli. An altarpiece in three compartments, in its original frame, with painted frieze, and with four predella pictures, the arms of the Rucellai being repeated at each end of the predella. The centre compartment represents St. Jerome at his devotions. The side pictures contain, on the left (of the spectator), Saints Damasus and Eusebius; on the right, Saints Paola and Eustochia. Beside them are represented, kneeling, on the left, Girolamo Rucellai (who died 1479); on the right, his son; above, on each side, are some angels. The subjects of the predella pictures relate to the history of the saints depicted above them. Painted on wood, in tempera. The principal pictures together measure 5 feet 8 inches wide, 5 feet high. The predella, including four pictures, and the arms repeated, measures 7 feet 4½ inches wide, 6½ inches high. The painted frieze measures 7 feet 2½ inches wide, 6½ inches high. The figures are about half life size. Purchased in Florence, October 1855, from the guardian of the Conte Ricasoli, a minor, for 114*l.* 17*s.*

This picture, while in the church for which it was painted, is said to have been, for a time, unprotected from the sun; the ground of some of the gilded portions had consequently exfoliated, but these and other defects were confined to parts capable of being well repaired. The altar frame required entire regilding. The picture was entrusted to Signor Ugo Baldi, of Florence, in order that the injured portions might be restored by him, and the frame repaired under his directions.

This work was formerly the altarpiece of the first chapel on the left, originally belonging to the Rucellai family, in the church of the Congregazione degl' Eremiti di S. Girolamo, at Fiesole. The Order was suppressed in 1668 by Clement IX.; the convent, applied to secular uses, subsequently became private property, and both church and convent are now within the precincts of the Villa Ricasoli. The pictures were removed to Florence a few years since. In the histories and guides of Fiesole this picture is described as being "di buona antica maniera."* A comparison of the figures and portraits, and of some remarkable peculiarities peculiarities in the treatment of other portions, with the Frescoes in S. Ambrogio, and with the altarpiece in Sta Maria Maddalena de' Pazzi, in Florence, leaves no doubt that it is a work of the best time of Cosimo Rosselli.

2. Sandro Botticelli. A circular picture, representing the Madonna and Child, with four angels, two of whom are crowning the Madonna. Painted on wood, in tempera; measure, 3 feet 8½ inches diameter; half figures, small life size. Purchased in Florence, October 1855, from J. H. Brown, Esq., banker, Florence, for 331*l.* 13*s.* This picture had been covered with a varnish, which, though serving as a protection, had altered its character as a tempera picture; it was therefore placed in the hands of Signor Baldi, above mentioned, with directions to remove the varnish, if the operation could be performed with safety. Formerly in the possession of the Polli family.

3. Benozzo Gozzoli. An altarpiece, representing the Madonna and Child enthroned. Behind the throne are some angels; on the left (of the spectator) are St. John the Baptist, and S. Zenobio, dressed in an embroidered chasuble; on the right, St. Peter and St. Dominic; in front, St. Jerome and St. Francis kneeling. Painted on wood, in tempera; measure, 5 feet 7½ inches wide, 5 feet 2½ inches high; figures small life size. Purchased in Florence, October 1855, from the agent for the heirs of the Rinuccini estate, for 137*l.* 16*s.* 8*d.* The sale of the Rinuccini Gallery was first fixed for May 1852, but took place later. A few pictures remained unsold, and among them was this specimen.

The picture is in excellent preservation in all essential respects. Being without a frame, it was left, together with the works before mentioned, in the hands of Signor Baldi, with directions to superintend the execution of a frame, the pattern of which was selected, and to repair some defects in the gilded and other portions of the picture.

In November 1855, some original documents relating to the history of art were published in Florence, and among them is the contract for this picture, dated 23d October 1461.* With the aid of this document the work is recognised as the principal portion of the altarpiece formerly in the chapel of the Compagnia di S. Marco, in Florence, and which is mentioned among the productions of Benozzo Gozzoli, by Vasari. The following is a translation of some extracts from the contract:

"That the said Benozzo shall, at his own cost, prepare with gesso, and diligently gild the said panel throughout, both as regards figures and ornaments; and that no other painter shall be allowed to take part in the execution of the said picture, neither in the predella, † nor in any portion of the same. And that the said Benozzo shall be bound to exert himself in the said work in such a manner that the said painting may exceed every good painting hitherto executed by the said Benozzo, or at least may be said quite to equal the same. And he shall represent on the said panel the hereinafter-mentioned figures, in the mode and form about to be expressed

"First, in the centre of the said picture, the figure of Our Lady enthroned, similar in mode, form, and ornaments to the picture of the high altar of St. Mark, in Florence.‡ And on the right side of the said picture [left of the spectator], beside Our Lady, the figure of St. John the Baptist, in the proper usual dress; and next him the figure of S. Zenobio, with his ornamented sacerdotal dress; and then the figure of St. Jerome kneeling, with his proper and usual accessories; and on the left side [right of the spectator], the undermentioned saints, that is to say, their figures. First, beside Our Lady, the figure of St. Peter, and next him that of St. Dominic, and then, next St. Dominic, the figure of St. Francis kneeling, with every accessory as usual."

Then follows the description of the pictures of the predella, and of two infants holding a shield, "where it is usual to place the arms of the person who orders the picture." . . . "And that all the azure which shall be employed on the said picture shall be the finest ultramarine, and that all the other colours shall be of the finest quality." The artist engages to complete the work within a year from October 1461.

The altarpiece of the Compagnia di S. Marco, by Benozzo Gozzoli, is noticed by Richa,§ without describing the subject, as being, in 1757, in the refectory of the Spedale del Melani, or de' Pellegrini, in Florence. At what subsequent period it became private property has not hitherto come to light.

4. Sandro Botticelli.—A circular picture, representing the Madonna and Child, with two angels. Half figures under life size, the picture being smaller than the specimen by the same master before mentioned. Painted on wood, in tempera. Purchased in Bologna, October 1855, from Professor Gio. Guiseppe Bianconi of Bologna, for 159*l.* 11*s.* 6*d.* In excellent preservation, and unvarnished.

This picture had been the property of the Abate Carlo Bianconi, Secretary of the Accademia delle Belle Arti at Milan, and well known among the historians of art; he died

* Alcuni documenti artistici non mai stampati, &c. Firenze, Le Monnier, 1855, p. 12.

† The predella, more particularly described in the contract afterwards, has disappeared.

‡ By Fra Angelico; the picture, much injured, is now in the Accademia delle Belle Arti in Florence. Benozzo's altarpiece, in the corresponding portion, resembles the central figures, as required.

§ Notizie Istoriche delle Chiese Fiorentine, &c., Tom. V (1757), p. 335. See also a note, referred to by Richa, by the Canonico Biscioni, in Borghini's Riposo.

in 1802. It is noticed (as a work of Ghirlandajo) in Bassani's "Guida per Bologna, 1816," p. 104. At the back of the picture is written, in the manner and orthography of the 15th century, "M. Giuliano da San Ghallo," showing that the picture had originally been the property of that architect. Vasari speaks of various works in sculpture which had been collected by the brothers S. Gallo*, and in his Life of Masaccio he mentions a picture by that master which belonged to Giuliano da S. Gallo.†

5. Andrea Mantegna.—In the centre the Madonna and Child enthroned; on the right of the spectator the Magdalen, on the left, St. John the Baptist, both standing. On the inner side of the scroll, attached to the cross of St. John, is the inscription, "Andreas Mantinea, C. P. F. (Civis Patavinus, Pedit.)" Painted on cloth, fastened, but not glued, to a panel;‡ the cloth is the same in texture as that of the St. Sebastian, by Mantegna, in the Scarpa Gallery at La Motta, in Friuli. Painted, either in tempera, or in some unglossy medium different in its results from ordinary oil painting; measure, 3 feet 9½ inches wide, 4 feet 6½ inches high. Purchased in Milan, December 1855, from Signor Roverselli, for 1,125*l.* 12*s.*

This picture is engraved in Aliprandi's unfinished work on the private galleries of Milan.§ It is mentioned in the description of Milan by Pirovano,|| in Borroni's Forestiére in Milano,¶ and in an earlier Guide of Milan, published by Sirtori. In the Florentine edition of Vasari, now in progress, will be found a commentary on Vasari's Life of Mantegna by Selvatico.†† Two lists are subjoined by him; one, containing the certain works of Mantegna, which have come under his knowledge, the other, the doubtful works. Among those in the former list the picture in question is thus described: "I am also ignorant for what place Mantegna painted the fine (stupenda) picture in the possession of the Mellerio family in Milan, and which was formerly the property of the Marquis Andreani. The Virgin with the Divine Child is seated in the centre; St. John the Baptist and the Magdalen are standing, one on each side. Considering the style of this work, happily not touched by restorers, it appears to have been executed at the same time as, or soon after, the altarpiece of St. Luke, now in the Brera at Milan. The drapery which covers the lower portion of the figure of the Virgin is an example of the choicest and most natural produced by the pencil of Mantegna," &c.

This work is in perfect preservation, with the exception of a cut, apparently the effect of wilful violence,‡‡ in the head of the Madonna; the injury has been well repaired at some former period, and is confined to a mere line. Pin-holes, near the neck and wrists of the Madonna and Child, show where real ornaments were formerly attached, and prove that the picture was once venerated as an altarpiece. The introduction of St. John the Baptist, whose expressive head is painted with especial care, affords some ground for the conclusion that this work was intended for the chapel, in S. Andrea in Mantua, which was granted to Mantegna, two years before his death, and which was dedicated to St. John the Baptist. §§ The altarpiece at present in the chapel, described by Ridolfi,||| consists of half figures, and is only a larger kind of predella. Lodovico Mantegna, writing (2d October 1506), shortly after his father's death, to the Marquis Francesco Gonzaga, speaks of two pictures by Andrea, which were intended for the chapel.¶¶ The remaining decorations of the chapel were executed by Mantegna's sons. It seems, therefore, that a picture by Mantegna had disappeared from the altar, or from the walls, before Ridolfi wrote, and probably during the pillage of Mantua in 1630.

The two pictures referred to may have been Mantegna's latest works, and parts in both may have been left unfinished at his death.††† In this picture, the less vigorous drawing and modelling in the Madonna's head point out that portion as having been, possibly, completed by an assistant. In other respects it does not appear that any attempt was made to retouch the conscientious work, or to render the effect more forcible.

A late writer, Rosini, though not considered an authority, appears to be correct in his general opinion of this work, if not so as regards the scholar who may have co-operated.

††† Mantegna died 13th September 1506. Selvatico, in the commentary before referred to, considers that the picture now in the chapel betrays the assistance of scholars; he, however, expresses no such doubt with regard to the present picture.

After quoting the statement, borrowed by Lanzi and Del Pozzo from Vasari, that Mantegna sometimes sent the works of Carotto into the world as his own,* he adds: "This will not appear probable to those who are acquainted with the Madonna of the Casa Mellerio in Milan; in that picture Mantegna painted two saints at the sides, which show the great distance between the master and the scholar."† Rosini thus intimates that the Madonna (meaning, doubtless, the portion before mentioned) is the work of Carotto. His opinion only appears questionable with regard to the particular assistant.

According to either of the above views, a different date will be assigned to the picture from that indicated by Selvatico. Giovanni Francesco Carotto, ultimately a distinguished master of Verona, was born in 1470; Mantegna returned from Rome to Mantua in 1490; the work, therefore, if Carotto assisted in it, was, in all probability, executed after that date. Assuming it, however, to have been intended for the chapel before referred to, there can be no doubt that the task of completion, if requisite at all, would be undertaken by one of Mantegna's sons.‡

This picture is stated by Borroni to have been bequeathed by Cardinal Cesare Monti, Archbishop of Milan, who died in 1650, to the Andreani family. The gallery of the Archbishop, part of which still exists, appears to have been enriched from the spoils of Mantua, which, after 1630, were in the market. The picture subsequently became the property of the Mellerio family, and was lastly inherited by that of Somaglia. From the representative of that house it was purchased by a dealer, in the autumn of 1855, and was finally purchased for the national collection, as already stated, from Signor Roverselli.

6. Paul Veronese.—The Adoration of the Magi. In the foreground the Virgin and Child, Joseph, and the three Magi; on the right and above, some peasants. Behind, is the retinue of the Magi, some bearing presents, others attending to their horses and camel. A ray of light, with winged cherubs hovering along its course, falls upon the Infant; above is a group of infant angels. Painted on canvas; measure, 11 feet 7 inches high, 10 feet 7 inches wide. Purchased in London, in November 1855, from Signor Angelo Toffoli, of Venice, for 1,977*l*. Engraved by Carlo Sacchi, 1649. On the whole well preserved. When the picture was removed from the church in which it had been originally placed, it was folded twice, horizontally. The foldings, which may still be traced in certain lights, occurred, however, in unimportant parts, and have been skilfully repaired.

This picture, which bears the date 1573, was, about that time, placed in the church of S. Silvestro in Venice. It is mentioned as being there by Sansovino,§ Boschini,|| Ridolfi,¶ Barri, Zanetti,†† and others. The church having required repairs, the numerous works of art which it contained were, in 1837, together with this picture, removed from the walls to a room within the precincts of the building. In the course of the architectural repairs, the internal form of the church had undergone alterations, so that when the pictures were to be replaced, as originally proposed, not one of the larger works could be fitted to the new altars and compartments. After much delay, a papal decree, together with an order from the local authorities, was obtained for the sale of those pictures. In August 1855 they became the property of Signor Toffoli, from whom, as above stated, the Paul Veronese was purchased for the national collection.

7. Marco Basaiti.—St. Jerome Reading; scene, a rocky landscape with distant buildings. Painted on wood; measure, 1 foot 1½ inches wide, 1 foot 6½ inches high. Purchased in Venice, November 1855, from M. Marcovich, for 43*l*. 13*s*. 1*d*. In perfect preservation, with the exception of some unimportant restorations near the edges.

8. Bartolommeo Vivarini.—In the centre the Madonna and Child; on her left, St. Jerome, on her right, St. Paul. Painted on wood; measure, 3 feet 1½ inch high, 2 feet 1 inch wide. Inscribed in an abbreviated form, "Opus Bartolomei Vivarini de Murano." Purchased in Venice, November 1855, from the Conte Bernardino Corniani degl' Algarotti for 97*l*. In perfect preservation. This picture, originally in the Contarini Gallery, is fully described in the Atti dell' Accademia di Venezia, 1817, p. 43, note 10; p. 51, note 20.

9. Bartholomeus Venetus (a distinct painter from Bartolommeo Vivarini).—Half length portrait of a Young Man in the Costume of the Compagnia della Calza, a representation of which costume will be found in the "Habiti Antichi et Moderni," of Cesare Vecellio, edition 1598, p. 50. Painted on wood; measure, 3 feet 5½ inches high, 2 feet 4 inches wide. Inscribed, "Ludov. Marti [nengo] Ætatis Ann. XXI. Bartolom. Venetus Faciebat MDXXX. XVI zun." Purchased in Venice, November 1855, from the representatives of the Conte Girolamo Michiel Pisani, heir of the Conte Girolamo Martinengo, for 48*l*. 10*s*.

10. Pordenone.—Half-length Portrait of a Young Woman of considerable enbonpoint, Pellegrina Morosini, wife of Bartolommeo Capello, and mother of the celebrated Bianca Capello. Painted on canvas; measure, 3 feet $2\frac{3}{4}$ inches high, 2 feet $7\frac{3}{4}$ inches wide. Purchased in Venice, December 1855, from the heirs of the Signori Capello, for 60 l. 9 s. 1 d. The figure untouched; the background in parts restored.

11. Giovanni Bellini.—The Madonna and Child. Background a green drapery, suspended from a cord, landscape on each side. Painted on wood; measure, 2 feet $11\frac{1}{2}$ inches high, 2 feet 1 inch wide; inscribed "Joannes Bellinus." In perfect preservation. Purchased in Venice, December 1855, from Baron Galvagna, together with nine other pictures. The price of the ten pictures was 2,189 l. 16 s. 10 d. Estimated price of the Bellini, in reference to that sum, 1,050 l.

12. Girolamo da' Libri.—The Madonna and Child. The Madonna is seated in a chair of classic form. Background, curtain and landscape. Painted on wood; measure, 2 feet high, 1 foot $4\frac{1}{2}$ inches wide. Purchased with the last named, in Venice, December 1855, from Baron Galvagna. In perfect preservation. This picture, while in the Galvagna collection, bore the name of Pellegrino da S. Daniele; it is also mentioned under that name in the well-known work, "Venezia Monumentale e Pittoresco, 1840," p. 168. A comparison, however, of this specimen with the works of Girolamo da' Libri has led to the conclusion that it would be more fitly ascribed to that master.

13. Francesco Tacconi.—The Madonna and Child. The Madonna is seated on a simple throne, her right foot raised on a footstool. Painted on wood; measure, 3 feet $3\frac{1}{2}$ inches high, 1 foot $8\frac{1}{2}$ inches wide; inscribed "op. Francisci Tachoni, 1489, octu." Untouched, with the exception of some minute restorations in unimportant parts. Purchased, together with No. 11, in Venice, December 1855. This picture was formerly in the Casa Savorgnan; it is referred to as forming part of the Galvagna Collection, in the dictionaries of Ticozzi and Nagler, art. Tacconi.

14. Palma Vecchio.—Bust Portrait of one of the Painter's Daughters. She is represented holding back a green curtain. Painted on wood; measure, 1 foot 9 inches high, 1 foot 5 inches wide. Purchased, together with No. 11, in Venice, in December 1855. In excellent preservation, with the exception of some nail-holes near the edge, which have been restored.

15. Giorgione.—A young Huntsman returning with his Booty; entire figure, rather more than half life size; called Esau. Painted on canvas; measure, 3 feet $8\frac{1}{2}$ inches wide, 3 feet $2\frac{3}{4}$ inches high. Purchased, together with No. 11, December 1855. In perfect preservation. Formerly in the Casa Savorgnan.

16. Tintoretto.—David with the Head of Goliath appearing before Saul; the singers following. Painted on canvas; measure, 4 feet $3\frac{1}{2}$ inches wide, 3 feet $2\frac{3}{4}$ inches high. Purchased, together with No. 11, in Venice, December 1855. Untouched.

17. Jacopo Bassano.—The Departure of Abraham. Painted on canvas; measure, 3 feet $9\frac{1}{2}$ inches wide, 2 feet $8\frac{3}{4}$ high. Purchased, together with No. 11, in Venice, December 1855. In perfect preservation; formerly in the Casa Savorgnan.

18. Jacopo Bassano.—Companion picture to the last-named. The Prodigal Son. Painted as above. Untouched, but darker than the companion picture. Formerly in the Casa Savorgnan; while in that collection both pictures were engraved by Pietro Monaco.

19. Tintoretto.—Head of a Cardinal, with grey beard. Painted on canvas; measure, 2 feet 1 inch high, 1 foot $8\frac{1}{2}$ inches wide. Purchased, together with No. 11, in Venice, December 1855. In perfect preservation in all essential parts.

MINUTES and CORRESPONDENCE respecting Operations in the NATIONAL GALLERY.

EXTRACTS from the Minutes of the Trustees of the National Gallery.

2 July 1855.

Read the following Report from the Keeper :—

"I beg to report to the Trustees, that the picture by Baroccio, called the 'Madonna del Gatto' is in a state which, in my opinion, requires immediate attention in order to save it from decay. The whole surface is covered with more or less projecting cracks; in some places these projecting portions have evidently become partially detached from the cloth; and in one or two points, fortunately not in important parts, small pieces have chipped off, leaving the cloth bare.

(signed) "Thomas Uwins."

The Trustees having, in company with Mr. Uwins, inspected the picture,

Resolve,—"That it is proper to provide immediately a glass for the better preservation of the picture; and that in the event of the relining of the picture being recommended, the work be undertaken, with the sanction of the Trustees of the British Museum, in the vacation."

6 August 1855.

"In obedience to the instructions of the Trustees, I obtained the attendance of Mr. Mulready, R. A., Mr. Bentley, and Mr. Leedham, who entered into a particular examination of the Baroccio. These gentlemen agreed with me as to the necessity of guarding against the injury which is going on, and which threatens the picture with destruction. As a present remedy, it was proposed that the picture should be protected by relining, and with this view they mutually signed the paper which is appended to this Report."

(signed) "Thomas Uwins."

"Having inspected the picture by Baroccio in the National Gallery, and having observed the defects noticed in Mr. Uwin's Report, dated 2 July 1855, we are of opinion that the picture requires to be carefully relined; and as it appears that Mr. Leedham, whose ability in relining is well known, thinks such relining can be accomplished with safety, we recommend the operation should be confided to him.

(signed) "W. Mulready.
"Jn. Bentley."

10 July 1855.

Resolved,—"That the Trustees of the National Gallery beg to draw the attention of the Trustees of the British Museum to the Report made by Mr. Uwins, of the unsafe condition of the picture by Baroccio, numbered 3-29 in the list of pictures deposited in the National Gallery by the Trustees of the British Museum."

A copy of the foregoing Minute was transmitted on 8th August to the Secretary of the Trustees of the British Museum. The following was the reply :

"Dear Sir,

British Museum, 13 August 1855.

"WITH reference to your letter, dated 8th instant, desiring to have instructions from the Trustees of the British Museum, with reference to the restoration of the picture by Baroccio, 'The Madonna del Gatto,' numbered 3-29 in the list of pictures deposited in the National Gallery by the Trustees of the British Museum, which picture is reported to be in an unsatisfactory state, I am directed by the Trustees to request that the Committee of Trustees of the National Gallery will have the goodness to take such measures on the part of the Trustees of the Museum for the relining of the picture by Baroccio as they think requisite.

"Believe me, &c.
(signed) "Henry Ellis,
Principal Librarian."

"G. S. Thwaites, Esq."

My Lords and Gentlemen,

National Gallery, 9 November 1855.

REFERRING to your Minute of the 2d of July last, respecting the relining of the picture by Baroccio, No. 3-29, and to the correspondence on the subject with the Trustees of the British Museum, I have now to report that, in accordance with such sanction, the picture has been relined, as proposed, by Mr. Francis Leedham, and that such relining has been performed to my entire satisfaction.

I have further to state, that I had authorised Mr. John Bentley during the vacation to wipe the surface of all the pictures in the National Gallery, including the pictures at Marlborough House, provided the operation could be performed with perfect safety; the object being not merely to cleanse the surface from dust and damp, but, as far as eligible, to renew the lustre of the varnish. I instructed Mr. Bentley to avoid adding any fresh varnish to the pictures at present, except where it might be deemed absolutely necessary.

My

My instructions to Mr. Bentley to the above effect were in writing, and are open to the inspection of the Trustees, now or at any future time, if required.

I have now to report that the effect of Mr. Bentley's careful operations has been to restore the due lustre of the surface of the pictures in almost every instance, two pictures only having appeared to require fresh varnish,—the Adoration of the Shepherds, by Velazquez, No. 232, and a portrait by Albert Durer, No. 245. Those pictures have been varnished, according to my instructions, with an essential-oil varnish.

Having been perfectly satisfied with the manner in which Mr. Bentley has attended to my instructions, I have requested him to be ready, as occasion may require, to wipe the surface of the pictures with a soft material, so as to keep them free from dust, and to preserve, as far as possible, the lustre of the surface.

I have, &c.

REPORT from Mr. Mulready and Mr. Seguier, respecting the State of some Pictures in Marlborough House.

London, 3 March 1856.

HAVING recently examined the English pictures in Marlborough House forming part of the National Gallery, we are of opinion that the evils which we before noticed in certain pictures in that collection have not increased.

With regard to the Wilkies we do not recommend that the cracks should be stopped at present.

Appendix, No. 9.

LETTER from the Director to the Trustees.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

National Gallery, 3 March 1856.

I BEG leave to call your attention to some circumstances, relating to the acquisition of pictures for the National Gallery, which have come under my notice in the course of the researches and negotiations which I have had the honour to report to you.

In private galleries, and even in those which are called select, it almost necessarily happens that pictures of great excellence and rarity are mixed with a considerable proportion of inferior works. In several cases of the kind I found that while the proprietors refused to accept most liberal offers for the finer specimens, no unwillingness was shown to part with the entire collection, and generally on very reasonable terms.

I am of opinion, that the most economical mode, under such circumstances, would be to purchase the entire collection, and afterwards by public sale to dispose of the portion least eligible for the National Gallery. At present the Trustees have no power to sell; and until an Act of Parliament enables them to do so, they will either have to sanction the much higher price which will always be demanded for the gems of a collection; or, should they decide on purchasing an entire gallery, they may be encumbered with pictures not altogether deserving a place in the national collection.

In treating for the best pictures in a private gallery a middle course is sometimes possible. The proprietor fixes a sum as the smallest amount for which he will consent to treat; the object of the buyer then is to include among the pictures so proposed to be purchased, not only the finer specimens which were the object of the negotiation, but the most eligible next in order. This is the only mode in which the purchase of several pictures together can be adapted to the conditions—I allude to the impossibility of reselling—under which the National Gallery is at present regulated.

There is another subject to which I take this opportunity of adverting. The Treasury Minute suggests that specimens of the earlier Italian masters should, among others, be selected for purchase. The following observations in the Report of the Committee of the House of Commons in 1853 convey a similar recommendation:

"The intelligent public of this country are daily becoming more alive to the truth, which has long been recognised by other enlightened nations, that the arts of design cannot be properly studied or rightly appreciated by insulated specimens alone; that in order to understand or profit by the great works, either of the ancient or modern schools of art, it is necessary to contemplate the genius which produced them, not merely in its final results, but in the mode of its operation, in its rise and progress, as well as in its perfection.

... What Chaucer and Spencer are to Shakspeare and Milton, Giotto and Masaccio are to the great masters of the Florentine School; and a National Gallery would be as defective without adequate specimens of both styles of painting, as a National Library without specimens of both styles of poetry. . . . Your Committee think that the funds appropriated to the enlargement of the [national] collection should be expended with a view not merely of exhibiting to the public beautiful works of art, but of instructing the people in the history of that art, and of the age in which, and the men by whom, those works were produced."

Notwithstanding the opinion expressed at the commencement of the passage above quoted, I believe that an interest for early Italian works of art, of the description referred to, is still by no means very general. At the same time I beg to express my conviction, in accordance with the above views, that the future completeness of the National Gallery should be constantly kept in view, without regard to the temporary impression produced by particular works; and that, therefore, opportunities should not be neglected for forming what may be called a chronological foundation for the Italian schools of art. I observe, also, that the completion of the history of art by specimens of its decline, granting even such specimens to be ultimately and to a limited extent desirable, may be safely postponed.

In the event, therefore, of entire collections being at any time purchased with a view to the subsequent sale of the least eligible portion, I conceive that the same principle of selection which I would generally recommend should be still observed; that principle being, the excellence of mature specimens, in connexion with the illustration of the painter's different styles; and the historic value and interest of early specimens, as exemplifying the rise and progress of art and its schools.

The Trustees of the National Gallery.

I have, &c.

REPORT of the Governors and Guardians of the LYING-IN HOSPITAL, DUBLIN.

THIS Institution, the largest as well as the first of the kind in the British dominions, was founded by Dr. Bart. Mosse in 1745. The present building was opened for patients in 1757. The charter of incorporation was obtained the year previously.

Since its foundation it has afforded relief on an average to 2,000 annually of the most destitute poor women of this city and neighbourhood, and occasionally from the provinces, the class of persons relieved being the wives of poor artisans, distressed citizens, soldiers, sailors, labourers, and others, many of whom, although able to support themselves and families by their daily labour, are yet totally destitute of the necessary accommodation, medicines, attendance, and comforts required in their confinement, and which this hospital so amply affords to them in their time of need. Every distressed and helpless mother who presents herself, and is properly recommended as an object of relief, is at once received into this hospital (poverty being the only passport required), and watched over by the medical attendants until discharged in a fit state to return to her home and resume the duties of her family. There are 127 beds in the hospital, 24 of which are now unoccupied, owing to the withdrawal of a portion of the Parliamentary grant, and 12 are exclusively appropriated to the diseases of females.

The income of the hospital is derived from the following sources: Parliamentary grant; interest on funded property; rents of houses; subscriptions and donations; profits on Rotunda Rooms and Gardens, which are let for public entertainments, exhibitions, &c. The certain yearly income is only about 710 l., and the casual income only 1,120 l., as averaged for some years past.

In the year 1790 the Governors were authorised by Act of 29 & 30 Geo. 3, to borrow 11,000 l. Irish on debentures, at four per cent. interest, in order to complete the building of the Rotunda Rooms, the interest upon which, amounting to 406 l. British per annum, they were for a long period enabled to pay out of a tax they received (under 25 Geo. 3, c. 43), from the owners of private sedan chairs; but by degrees this duty ceased to exist, and has not for many years produced any income, and the interest on those debentures has, since 1803, been regularly paid out of the annual grant received from Parliament, the Governors having no other fund from which they could by possibility pay the same.

By the continued efforts of the Governors to reduce the expenses of the establishment to the lowest point consistent with its usefulness, they have been enabled to reduce their estimate for the ensuing year considerably below that of former years; but still a sum of 900 l. is required, in addition to the income as above stated.

The Governors have made every exertion to obtain subscriptions and donations in aid of the charity during the past year.

SHELTER FOR FEMALES DISCHARGED FROM PRISON.

ESTIMATE for defraying Rent and Taxes of the above Institution.

Fifty Pounds.

Harcourt Road, Dublin, 17 January 1856.

H. Bewley, Hon. Secretary.

Sir,

Harcourt Road, Dublin,
19 January 1856.

I BEG leave to transmit you herewith the Estimates of Rent and Taxes for the above Institution for the ensuing year.

I have pleasure in informing you that thirteen poor creatures have been received into the Institution during the past year; four have been restored to their friends. Situations as domestic servants have been procured for six, who are all doing well, with one exception. Three have been discharged at their own request, one has been dismissed for bad conduct, and twenty-five remain in the Institution at the present time.

Owing to the enhanced price of provisions, and the low state of the funds of the Institution, the number of inmates has been necessarily reduced.

Col. Larcom, }
Castle, Dublin. }

I have, &c.

SINCE the publication of the last report of this institution there have been distributed 12,600 charges of vaccine lymph, and 2,456 children have been vaccinated, showing, as compared with the preceding year, a slight increase in the number vaccinated, and also a steadily progressive demand for vaccine matter. This demand is, as has been previously stated, in great part referable to the difficulty experienced in inducing parents to bring back their children to the several dispensaries at the times appointed for inspection and procuring from the successful cases a supply of lymph for further use. Indeed, judging from the numerous letters received from various quarters, it would almost appear that few think of returning unless when the attempt at vaccination has completely failed; and of these who may happen to bring back their children, rarely any show themselves till the period when the process has been so far advanced as not to admit of the contained matter being further applicable for healthy vaccination; a negligence in some few instances the result of apathy, but, in the majority, having its source in an unwillingness to allow the vesicle to be opened, lest the so doing might lessen the protective power of the vaccination, or, as it is ignorantly stated, cause the arm to inflame. This popular error is not by any means confined to the poor and uneducated, being frequently met with as influencing the more respectable, and, what we ought to expect to be, more enlightened classes of society, to remove or do away with which every reasonable effort ought to be made.

The directors strongly impressed with the fact that recent, and more especially fluid vaccine lymph is greatly preferable to that which has become dried or been long kept, would refer to their previous report, in which they express their regret that some measures have not been adopted to secure the return at the proper period of those attempted to be vaccinated; inasmuch as their being kept back is attended with a twofold inconvenience; firstly, the withholding a fair supply of recent and consequently more efficacious lymph; and secondly (what in a public point of view is of even greater importance) the entire uncertainty as to the result in each individual instance. It is quite impossible, without due and repeated inspection of the arm, to arrive at anything approaching a satisfactory conclusion on the matter; hence it follows, as a consequence of such neglect, that the benefit sought to be conferred upon the public, by affording apparently every facility for the furtherance of vaccination, is rendered comparatively null and void.

The "deposit system" has been prohibited, on the ground that there is no provision in "the Medical Charities Act" authorising such a course, and that when it had been adopted, this object of securing the return had not been uniformly attained, as in many instances persons of sufficient means to be able to leave a pecuniary deposit have not again presented themselves; and that, on the other hand, were it generally understood that a pecuniary deposit, however small, were required, it would operate amongst the poorer classes as a check to their availing themselves of the benefit of vaccination. Upon this point the directors do not attempt to offer any opinion; still they cannot but recollect that in this institution such a system has for many years worked admirably well; indeed they can safely state, that had it not been steadily enforced (of course with some discretionary exceptions, where the applicant is very poor), the returns from apathy or other causes would have been comparatively few, much more than one-half of those vaccinated without a deposit having been insisted upon, having neglected to return. Nor can they shut their eyes to the fact, that under the former dispensary arrangements it was very generally adopted throughout the country at large, and with very advantageous results.

They would in conclusion earnestly endeavour to impress upon the minds of those in authority the importance of the consideration, as to how far it might be practicable to adopt such measures as would be calculated to ensure a second, and, if possible, even a third visit, from the applicants for vaccination; otherwise they are compelled to fear that the whole matter must remain in a state of unprofitable uncertainty, a vague inference as to the result being the only conclusion that can be arrived at.

By Order,

Henry L. Dwyer, M.D., Secretary.

Edward B. Sinclair, M.D., Assistant Secretary.

DIRECTIONS FOR VACCINE INOCULATION.

FOR inoculation, the cow-pock infection, which, if dry, should be carefully softened with the smallest particle of cold water, taken upon the point of a lancet, is to be inserted in the arm by several very slight scratches, so as barely to draw blood; or, what generally succeeds better, apply the infected part of the glass, or ivory point, upon the scratches, and rub it thereon extremely well, so as to lodge the infection completely in the little wounds. At the distance of about an inch on the same arm, the operation may be repeated, to lessen the risk of disappointment. The part inoculated should be left uncovered the remainder of the day, and kept during the whole course of the disease as free as possible from pressure, hurt, or irritation.

Not more than one patient, or two at the utmost, should be inoculated from each packet, and the greatest care should be taken to rub the infection perfectly into the scratches. Want of proper attention in this circumstance occasions many failures.

If the operation succeed, a little red spot, like a gnat-bite, will appear on the third day after the inoculation, which, on the fourth or fifth, becomes perceptibly vesicated; on the eighth or ninth, it is as large as a pea, and circular or oval in shape, its margin elevated and well defined, its centre depressed and of a darker colour than the rest of the vesicle. About the tenth day, a rose-coloured efflorescence, with induration of the part, surrounds the vesicle, varying in extent from the size of a sixpence to that of a half-crown piece, remaining nearly stationary for a day or two; this efflorescence fades away, and the vesicle is converted into a hard glossy scab, of a dark mahogany colour, which, having fallen off, leaves a circular oval pit in the arm, very characteristic of genuine cow-pock. The efflorescence or areola is usually attended with some degree of symptomatic fever. Should the progress of the vesicle appear to be very slow on the eighth day, it may be prudent to insert in the opposite arm a portion of the recent lymph taken therefrom.

The spurious cow-pock, in general, runs a more rapid course than that above described. The scarlet efflorescence, which in this case is jaggy, notched, and without the characteristic hardness of the true vaccination, appears on or before the seventh day; and the pustule, which has much the appearance of a common festering sore, is soon converted into a light brown scab, that leaves little or no mark. These imperfect cases are very liable to occur in patients affected with herpetic and other eruptions of the skin; such complaints, therefore, should be removed, if possible, before inoculation.

Dr. Jenner has very correctly observed, that a little practice in vaccine inoculation, attentively conducted, impresses on the mind the perfect character of the vaccine; and, therefore, when any material deviation arises from the course above described, of whatever kind it may be, common prudence points out the necessity of re-inoculation with vaccine infection of the most active kind.

Practitioners should take care that the lancet used for vaccination be perfectly clean, and therefore the preservation of infection on a lancet beyond the period of one day is improper, as it is apt to contract rust.

The most proper period for taking infection from a vesicle making its progress regularly is from the seventh to the ninth day, and never after the efflorescence has made any considerable progress. Genuine vaccine fluid at this period is always limpid as the purest water, and that which is opaque ought, of course, be rejected. When inserted immediately in its fluid state, from one patient to another, its effects are more certain than when used in a dry state.

Bad sores on the arm, and a collection of pus in the axilla, so rarely succeed vaccine inoculation, applied in the manner heretofore described, that local applications will seldom be found necessary. If the part be irritated, or suffer mechanical injury, and inflammation follow, poultices are not to be used, but the abraded vesicles are to be dressed with the prepared oxide of zinc ointment, over which pledgets, soaked lightly in the liquor plumbi subacetatis compositus, should be applied, and an aperient given to the patient. Should much restlessness and fever arise, the best remedies are the warm bath, small doses of Dover's and James's powders, with hydrargyrum cum creta, and perfect quietness of the limb.

COMMON LAW COMMISSION.

Sir, 7, Lancaster-place, Strand, 5 January 1856.
IN answer to the letter of the 3d ultimo, I am desired to inform you that,

1. The probable expenses of the Common Law Commission for the present year will be from 81*l.* to 84*l.* It should be mentioned, however, that a recommendation has recently been made to the Home Office by the Lord Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, as Senior Commissioner, for salaries to be paid to W. H. Walton, Esq., one of the Commissioners, and to the secretary of the Commission.

2. The date of the first appointment of the Commission is the 13th of May 1850.

3. The Common Law Commissioners have submitted two Reports to Her Majesty. The First Report was dated the 30th of June 1851; and upon that Report a Bill was framed, and passed under the title of "The Common Law Procedure Act, 1852," and came into operation on the 24th day of October 1852. The Second Report was dated the 30th day of April 1853; and upon that Report another Bill was framed, and passed under the title of "The Common Law Procedure Act, 1854," and came into operation on the 24th of October 1854. The Commissioners have met several times since to consider matter for a Third Report.

4. As to the probable duration of the Commission? This question was addressed to the Commissioners in November last by the Lord Chancellor; and I was desired by them to return the following answer:—"No time can be fixed for the probable duration of the Commission. The subject upon which the Commissioners were authorised to report was very extensive and complicated. There are still some portions of it untouched. The Commissioners have thought it desirable to observe the practical effect of the enactments founded upon their former Reports before proceeding to report further."

I am directed to state that the Commissioners are still of the same opinion.

I have, &c.

CHANCERY COMMISSION.

Sir,

11, New-square, Lincoln's Inn, 5 January 1856.

IN reply to your letter of the 3d instant, addressed to the secretary to the, Procedure in Chancery, Commissioners, I have the honour to enclose a copy of a communication which I recently, by the direction of the Chancery Commissioners, made to the Lord Chancellor's principal secretary, at his request to be forwarded to the Treasury through the Home Office, in answer to a series of questions involving points substantially the same as those upon which your letter requires information.

I have only to add that I estimate the expense attending the Commission during the present year at 1,000*l.*, unless it should be sooner terminated, in which case a proportionate part only of this sum during the period of its continuance would probably be required.

I am, &c.

(signed) C. Chapman Barber, Secretary.

H. Waddington, Esq., &c. &c. &c.

1. Whether a Royal Commission, or otherwise ?

A Royal Commission.

2. The names of the Commissioners, and whether they are paid or unpaid ?

The Commissioners are unpaid. Their names are :—

The Master of the Rolls (Sir John Romilly, Knt.)

The Lord Justice Turner.

The Vice-Chancellor Kindersley.

The Vice-Chancellor Wood.

The Dean of the Arches (Sir John Dodson, Knt.)

The Judge of the Court of Admiralty (Dr. Lushington).

Mr. Justice Crompton.

Sir James Graham.

Mr. Henley.

The Queen's Advocate (Sir J. D. Harding).

The Solicitor-general (R. Bethell, Esq., Q.C.)

Mr. Rolt, Q.C.

Mr. W. M. James, Q.C.

3. The date of the first appointment of the Commission ?

There are four Commissions in all, dated respectively,—

11 December 1850.

31 January 1851.

4 July 1851.

20 November 1852.

4. The Reports, if any, which have been made by the Commission, and the date of such Reports ?

The First Report made 27th January 1852, the Second Report made the 12th January 1854. The Commissioners have also since their Second Report made communications to the Lord Chancellor, which have resulted in general orders of the Court of Chancery altering the practice of procedure of the Court.

5. The probable duration of each Commission, and the reasons for such continuance ?

The Commissioners have since their last Report taken a large body of evidence, and have had under their consideration various subjects referred to them by the Commission. They are at present engaged in devising alterations and improvements in the Registrar's Office, and the mode of drawing up decrees and orders of the Court of Chancery, with a view to promote the despatch of business in the Court, and they expect to make a Report on that subject, and other matters connected with the process and procedure of the Court by Easter next, and previously to this time, at least the Commissioners would recommend that the Commission should not be terminated. With respect to any further continuance of the Commission beyond that period, the Commissioners have to observe, that other subjects within the scope of the Commissioners, which have been agitated but not fully considered, will still remain, but having regard to the magnitude of these subjects, and to the engrossing duties which occupy the attention of so many of the Commissioners, as to render it difficult to procure a full attendance of the members of the Commission, the Commissioners are unable to fix any limit within which they may reasonably expect to be able to report upon the remaining subjects, which they are directed to inquire into.

6. The

6. The estimated cost of each Commission during the current year, ending 31 March 1856?

The expenses of the Commission consist of the salaries of the secretary, 600 l. per annum, and a clerk, 100 l. per annum; the expense of employing a shorthand-writer to take down evidence, and a printer to print it, and other papers connected with the Commission, and some petty expenses. The total expense is estimated at about 1,000 l. a year.

ROYAL LUNACY COMMISSION (SCOTLAND).

Sir,

Office, 120 George-street, Edinburgh, 9 January 1856.

I WAS yesterday favoured with your communication, of date 3d instant, on which you requested me to transmit to you, as soon as possible, information in the following points; namely, "A statement of the probable sum, if any, which will be required to defray the expenses of the Lunatic Asylums (Scotland) Inquiry Commissioners during the present year, accompanied by a statement of the date of its appointment, of the progress which the Commissioners have made in the inquiry entrusted to them during the present year; of the probable time which it will take to complete the inquiry, and of the grounds on which the opinion as to the probable duration of the Commission is based."

I have now the honour of replying to these queries:

1. As to the first of the above queries, I am instructed by the Commissioners to report that a sum of 500*l.* (in addition to the 500*l.* already received by me on 21st May 1855) will probably be needed to cover the remaining expenses of the Commission. I have to state, however, that this estimate does not include the cost of printing the Report. I beg to refer you to the enclosed note of expenditure in carrying out the objects of the Commission, including (1) sums already paid (for which I hold vouchers); (2) accounts still owing, and (3) accounts likely to be incurred.

2. I beg to state, that the Commission was appointed of date 3d April 1855.

3. The Commissioners have now nearly concluded the investigation which was entrusted to them.

4. The Commissioners hope to be able to present their Report to Secretary Sir George Grey, in the month of March.

5. The inquiry of the Commissioners is already nearly completed, and they are now engaged in preparing their Report.

I have, &c.

ENDOWED SCHOOLS (IRELAND) COMMISSION.

Sir,

Dublin Castle, 14 January 1856.

I HAVE laid before Her Majesty's Commissioners for inquiring into Endowed Schools in Ireland, your communication of 3d instant, requiring a statement "of the probable sum which will be required to defray the expenses of the Commission during the present year, accompanied by a statement of the date of its appointment, of the progress which the Commissioners have made in the inquiry entrusted to them during the past year, of the probable time it will take to complete the inquiry, and of the grounds on which the opinion as to the probable duration of the Commission is based."

I am directed by the Commissioners to state in reply, that the Commission bears date 14 November 1854, and was to continue in force for 12 months.

The Commissioners held their first meeting on 25 November 1854, and between that day and 1 January 1855, they held six meetings. The Commissioners held 19 meetings during the months of January, February, April, May, June, and July 1855, and during these months, the secretary and assistant secretaries were engaged in preparing lists of schools and endowments from—

The 13 Reports of the Board of Education in Ireland in 1807–12.

The Returns made to Parliament in 1821 and 1823.

The seven Reports of the Commissioners of Irish Education Inquiry from 1824 to 1828.

The Reports of the Commissioners of Municipal Corporations in Ireland, 1833.

The two Reports of the Commissioners of Public Instruction in Ireland in 1835.

The Reports of the Select Committee of the House of Commons on Foundation Schools, from 1835 to 1838.

The secretary and assistant secretaries were also engaged for a considerable time in examining the records of wills contained in the office of the Board of Charitable Donations and Bequests, and in preparing extracts therefrom for the use of the Commission.

In consequence of some opposition to the execution of the Commission, Her Majesty's Government introduced a Bill into Parliament to confer on the Commission the power necessary to enable them to prosecute their inquiries; and this Bill passed both Houses of Parliament, and received the Royal Assent on 23 July 1855.

The Commissioners on 4th September 1855 applied for a continuation of the Commission for six months, and the extension of time was accordingly granted, and will expire on 14th May 1856.

With respect to the progress that the Commissioners have made in their inquiry during the year 1855, I have to state that the number of days on which a quorum of the Commission was occupied in the despatch of business was 119; viz.—

Meetings at their office in Dublin Castle	-	-	-	-	34 days.
Public courts in Dublin	-	-	-	-	12 "
Ditto - in other counties	-	-	-	-	40 "
Travelling and visiting upwards of 100 schools	-	-	-	-	33 "
					119 days.

Circulars, to the number of 427, inquiring as to the existence of endowments, were addressed to the clergy of all denominations, and to other persons specially connected with endowments. Circulars were also addressed to principal masters or trustees, inquiring as to 1,900 schools or endowments.

The number of cases in which these circulars were returned as dead letters, or in which letters were received indicating that endowments were mismanaged, or not in operation, led to a very extensive correspondence, the letters sent, in addition to the circulars, amounting to 3,850. The total number of communications sent during the year was 11,305, and the total number received 5,833.

Under the provisions of 18 & 19 Vict. c. 59, his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant, on 27th September 1855, appointed Four Assistant Commissioners, who have been diligently engaged in the discharge of their duties, and have completed their inquiries into schools and endowments in the counties of Armagh, Galway, Kerry, Mayo, Roscommon, and Waterford, and partly inquired into those in Down and Dublin.

From the number of schools to be inspected, and endowments to be investigated, as compared with those that have been already inquired into, and assuming that the investigation proceeds at the same rate, the Commissioners do not anticipate that the Assistant Commissioners can complete their returns previous to 1st October next.

Some time will be required to digest the returns of the Assistant Commissioners, but the Commissioners expect that their Report will be completed before the close of the present year.

As to the probable expenses of the Commissioners for this year (1856), the Commissioners have directed me to state, that the remuneration of the Assistant Commissioners, under the Act of Parliament, is fixed at a sum of 200 l. each, but the Commissioners have, in a communication sent herewith, recommended that it be raised to a sum of 500 l., of which 375 l. will be chargeable to the year 1856. The entire estimated expenses for the present year will amount to 5,168 l., as by Schedule annexed.

I have, &c.

REGISTRATION OF TITLE COMMISSION.

Sir,

11 January 1856.

In reply to your letter, dated the 3d instant, I have the honour to lay before you the following statement.

With reference to the question as to the "probable sum, if any, which will be required to defray the expenses of the Registration of Title Commission during the present year," I cannot answer otherwise than by stating the regular expenses of the Commission, inasmuch as it is at present impossible to state with certainty at what period its work will be completed.

The regular expenses of the Commission are as follows:—Secretary, 300 l. a year; clerk, 2 l. a week; messenger, 1 l. a week; and the housekeeper one guinea a week; and the bills for coals, candles, soap, chimney-sweeping, and other incidental expenses (such as postage), probably amount to about 20 l. a quarter, liable, however, to be increased, if on any occasion the services of a short-hand writer are required to take notes of evidence, or if any extraordinary outlay of a similar description becomes necessary.

With respect to the remaining questions contained in your letter, the matter stands thus:

The Registration of Title Commission is dated the 18th of January 1854.

The Commissioners have examined witnesses orally, and have circulated printed questions both in this country and in Ireland, and to these questions they have received numerous and lengthened replies, since the receipt of which they have been engaged twice a week, and occasionally oftener, in careful and anxious deliberation upon the matters before them. And, on the whole, their labours are so far advanced that they hope to be able to make a report early in this year.

But I am instructed to say, that the novelty, complication, and difficulty of the subject entrusted to them, and the official and professional avocations which necessarily distract the attention of many of their members, render it difficult to fix more precisely any period for the termination of their inquiry.

I have, &c.
(signed) J. W. Sanders, Secretary.

H. Waddington, Esq., &c. &c. &c.

This is not, however, a charge on the Public Funds, inasmuch as the receipts from Stamp Duties, per Act 16 Vict. c. 5 (formerly fees to meet expenses of the Patent Office) may be estimated for the year 1855 to amount to 90,000 l. Of this sum of 50,000 l., 20,000 l., or thereabouts, is estimated as the cost of printing the specifications of the current year, and 30,000 l. as the cost of printing a certain number of the specifications enrolled previous to the Act of 1852. It is calculated that this latter work, at the rate of 2,000 in each year, the number estimated for, will be completed in five or six years.

REPORT from the HYDROGRAPHER to the ADMIRALTY relative to the proposed LIGHTHOUSE on the Basses Rocks, Ceylon.

HAVING considered the communication from the Treasury of the 21st of July, and having already stated my opinion that a Lighthouse on the Basses Rock, such as I have already described, is of the highest importance to vessels navigating the adjoining seas, I have now only to add, in answer to the direct question put, that I consider the Lighthouse to be of sufficient importance to the public interest to justify it being charged upon Imperial funds: first, because I deem it important that the Lighthouse should be established with as little delay as possible, and I see no other funds available for the object; and, secondly, because, were it otherwise, it appears to me when such great national interests are concerned, both for the mercantile and the Royal marine, that such a Light falls within the special province of being an Imperial work, and that it would be very difficult, if not impossible (were it considered desirable), to levy a revenue on all passing ships, to meet the charge of erection and maintenance.

As regards the preparation of an Estimate of cost of erection and maintenance of the Lighthouse, I beg to refer to the printed commands of their Lordships of 1st January 1853, on all questions of Colonial Lights, wherein it is directed, "That the Hydrographer, with the assistance of the Harbour Department, is to decide on the position and nature of the tower and light, its height, &c., and furnish such information as may be required by the Director of Works, who will then undertake all further proceedings in the matter, and with whom will rest the responsibility of seeing that the work is properly executed, and of suggesting the best and least expensive mode of erecting the same."

The accompanying papers appear to contain all the necessary information, and it is submitted that the whole be transmitted to the Director of Works for estimates of erection and maintenance, and details of the work.

In conclusion, it may be proper I should draw attention to the question, whether the Iron Lighthouse should have a basement of stone-work, as suggested by Sir Fleetwood Pellew, and recommended by Captain Vetch, and as approved by Mr. James Stewart, Master Attendant at Colombo, under date of 3d of December last, and by Mr. Troynam, Master Attendant of Galle, on 13th December last, or whether the whole structure be an iron tower, as proposed by Mr. Gordon, C.E., in his letter to Captain Washington, of 27th ultimo, a question which will remain for the decision of the Director of Works, the responsible officer in the case.

16 August 1854.

LIGHTHOUSE proposed to be built on the Island of Cerigo.

Sir,

Admiralty, 3 March 1856.

I AM commanded by my Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty to request you will state to the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, that the Turkish government have adopted measures to establish proper Lighthouses from the Isle of Tenedos to the Black Sea; and the Greek government have now requested the co-operation of this department to decide on the position and description of lights which that government contemplates establishing for the safe navigation of the Archipelago; my Lords have, in consequence, selected an officer (Captain Spratt) who has been employed for some years in the survey of the Archipelago and neighbouring coasts, and who is well acquainted with the requirements of navigation in those seas, to proceed to Athens, and afterwards to Constantinople to arrange with the officers of the respective governments the best situation and full particulars of each Light proposed to be established; that in the discussion of this subject the attention of my Lords has been particularly called to the fact, that the Light most wanted for the safe navigation of that Archipelago is neither a Greek nor a Turkish Light, but one on British territory, namely, at the northern point of the Island of Cerigo, for the purpose of lighting the Cervi Channel between the island and the Morea. It is through this channel that all steamers and many sailing vessels now pass to and from Athens, the Dardanelles, and the Levant, nearly every transport that has gone to the East has passed through that passage, and every soldier that has to be brought home will return through it. The Cervi Channel has become the recognised course, and as commerce increases it will be more and more frequented. Under these circumstances, my Lords recommend that immediate measures be taken to construct a Lighthouse at the spot indicated, to exhibit a first-class fixed light, placed at a height of from 250 to 300 feet above the sea; to be visible about 24 miles, so as to clear Cape Matapan on the west, and St. Angelo on the east. My Lords understand that there is stone in abundance close at hand on the island, and that Greek or Maltese workmen might be easily procured for the execution of the work, which would consist of a low tower, as the land on which it would be placed is elevated. The expense of the work has not been estimated by their Lordships, as the construction of Lighthouses is now deputed to the Lords of the Committee of Privy Council for Trade; and my Lords would, therefore, suggest that immediate instructions be given to that department, in concert with the Colonial Department, to take steps to proceed at once with the undertaking, so that a temporary Light might be exhibited in three months, and the permanent Light be established before the autumn.

J. Wilson, Esq., &c. &c. &c.

I am, &c.

SCIENCE AND ART DEPARTMENT, MARLBOROUGH HOUSE—REMOVAL.

AN ESTIMATE of the SUM proposed to be Voted in the Year 1856, ending 31st March 1857, for the purpose of defraying the Cost of Removing, the SCIENCE and ART BRANCH of the EDUCATION DEPARTMENT of the COUNCIL OFFICE, from MARLBOROUGH HOUSE to KENSINGTON GORE.

Ten Thousand Pounds.

Note.—The following letter explains the necessity for the removal of the Department.

Department of Science and Art, Marlborough House,
16 May 1856.

Sir,

I AM directed by the Lords of the Committee of Privy Council on Education to draw your attention to the effect which the decision of the Government in regard to the improvements in St. James's Park will have upon the Training Schools at Marlborough House.

My Lords understand that the German Chapel in Marlborough House will be taken down, in order to make a public road from Pall Mall to St. James's Park; but this public accommodation will have the effect of causing the removal of the principal class-rooms of the Training School, which is erected close to the Chapel in question.

The useful objects secured for the Museum in Paris in 1855, and the increasing want of room in the Training School, have augmented the necessity for that increased accommodation which was represented last year to the Lords Commissioners in a letter printed with the Estimates, and have rendered it expedient to find a remedy forthwith.

An immediate removal from Marlborough House, therefore, has become highly desirable, if even the house had not to be surrendered in a short time, in pursuance of the provisions of Act 13 & 14 Vict. c. 78. A temporary separation of the offices and of the schools and Museum would prove inconvenient and expensive to the public, while many advantages would result by the removal of all being effected together; and this should take place during the months of August or September, in order that the courses of the Training Schools may experience no interruption. My Lords understand that the new Museum at Kensington will be completed in July; and they therefore recommend that the Art Museum and the offices, &c., of the department, with its Training School, should be moved to the same site in the course of the present year, and they have accordingly prepared Estimates for the consideration of the Treasury.

It will conduce to economy to take down the temporary wooden School-rooms now used at Marlborough House, as well as the fittings of the Lecture Theatre, &c., and to transfer them to the ground at Kensington; and, assuming that the Treasury and the Commissioners for the Exhibition of 1851 would be willing to allow the houses adjacent to the new Museum to be used also, it would still be necessary to provide space beyond what these houses would afford, for the purposes of a Lecture Theatre and Library, and some offices.

The space at present occupied in various parts at Marlborough House, amounts to about 27,000 square feet. By erecting a Lecture Theatre and Library, as proposed, and connecting the new Museum with the old houses by means of a gallery, it is estimated that about 28,000 square feet might be provided at Kensington, besides the space obtained by the new Museum building.

The contractors for the new Museum have prepared an estimate of the cost of the new structures, which amounts to 5,500*l*. It is estimated that the cost of removal from Marlborough House, the re-erection of the old school-rooms, and the provision of additional glass-cases and fittings, will amount to 3,000*l*, and that a sum of 1,500*l*. should be added for for the repairs and additions necessary in the old houses; which sums make up a total of 10,000*l*. This appears to be a very moderate outlay to obtain better accommodation than is at present afforded by Marlborough House, but which accommodation, if sought for in the market, would probably cost 2,000*l*. a year in rental.

It may be desirable to explain, that had My Lords been aware that the recommendation of the Committee of the House of Commons to remove the German Chapel, and with it the Training School of this department, was to have been carried into effect, their Lordships would have included the above sum of 10,000*l* in the Estimates for the present year, which, even with such addition, would have been 4,689*l*. less than the Estimates of the last year.

The Secretary, Her Majesty's Treasury.

I have, &c.
Lyon Playfair.

CLERK OF JUSTICIARY IN SCOTLAND—COMPENSATION ON SURRENDER OF PATENT.

AN ESTIMATE of the SUM required to be Voted in the Year 1856, ending 31st March 1857, for the Compensation to be paid to Mr. Patrick Boyle, on the SURRENDER of his PATENT OFFICE of CLERK of JUSTICIARY in Scotland.

Six Thousand One Hundred and Eighty-four Pounds.

The following TREASURY MINUTES, dated 1st April and 9th May 1856, explain the grounds on which this Arrangement has been made.

TREASURY MINUTE, dated 1st April 1856.

READ letter from the Actuary of the National Debt Office, stating in reply to a reference made to him upon the subject, that the “sum which might now be equitably tendered to Mr. Boyle, as a compensation for the surrender of his office of Justiciary Clerk, is “5,583*l.* 5*s.* 3*d.*, and that he would be fully compensated for the interest which he possesses in the patronage of the office by an additional sum of 600*l.*” This letter is dated 22d March 1856.

My Lords resume the consideration of all the papers and correspondence relating to the surrender by Mr. Patrick Boyle of his office of Clerk of Justiciary in Scotland, on receiving a fair and just compensation, and the provision which it would in that event be necessary to make for the performance of the duties of the department.

My Lords likewise have before them the Act of 2 & 3 Vict. c. 36, the 3d section of which enacts, that after “the present Lord Justice Clerk and the present Principal Clerk of Justiciary shall cease to hold their offices, the appointment to the offices of Principal and Depute Clerks of the Court of Justiciary, and also of the Circuit Clerks of the said Court, shall, as vacancies occur, be vested in Her Majesty, her heirs and successors; and all persons to be hereafter appointed to any of the said offices shall perform the duties thereof in person.”

The Act of 2 & 3 Vict. c. 36, having passed on the 29th of July 1839, and the then Lord Justice Clerk having, in October 1841, become Lord Justice-general in Scotland, his interest interest ceased; and the purchase of the existing interest of Mr. P. Boyle will leave at the disposal of the Crown any future appointments in the department in question, and put an end to the last existing right of sale in the offices of the Scotch Courts of Law.

Mr. Charles Neaves, the Depute Clerk, and his Circuit Clerks, however, hold their appointments during their respective lives, under the commission of the Lord Justice Clerk Boyle, deceased.

Mr. Patrick Boyle has offered to surrender his office, in order that steps may be taken for the regulation thereof, upon receiving a fair compensation; and as Mr. Boyle is much younger than any of the actual holders of the offices to which he has the power of appointment during his life, it becomes extremely important that advantage should be taken of his offer, to vest in the Crown all future appointments, and to regulate upon a satisfactory footing the very important office of Principal Clerk of Justiciary in Scotland.

My Lords are therefore pleased to direct that an offer of 6,183*l.* 6*s.* 3*d.* be made to Mr. P. Boyle for the purchase of his Patent Rights; that is, 5,583*l.* 5*s.* 3*d.*, the value of his office of Justiciary Clerk, according to the Succession Duties Assessment, and 600*l.* for the right of Patronage which he possesses in virtue of it.

Write accordingly to the Queen's and Lord Treasurer's Remembrancer in Scotland, transmitting a copy of Mr. Finlaison's letter of 22d March 1856, and state that my Lords will make provision in the Estimates now before Parliament for the sum of 6,183*l.* 5*s.* 3*d.*, to purchase the whole of Mr. Boyle's interest in the office in question, and they will be prepared to advance to Mr. Henderson, from Civil Contingencies, the sum in question upon the execution of the necessary deed of resignation by Mr. Patrick Boyle. Add, that my Lords will then take the necessary steps for appointing Mr. Charles Neaves, the Principal Clerk, with a salary of 700*l.* per annum, to include all fees and emoluments hitherto received by him; and Mr. James Wilson Hamilton, the First Clerk, with a salary of 250*l.* per annum; and Mr. George Macqueen, the Second Clerk, with a salary of 200*l.* per annum, in lieu of all fees and emoluments whatever.

My Lords are likewise of opinion that all the fees, with the exception of those payable by private parties, should be abolished; and an account of those which are still taken should be kept and rendered once a quarter to the Queen's and Lord Treasurer's Remembrancer.

State that, upon the completion of Mr. Patrick Boyle's surrender, my Lords will be prepared to take immediate steps for carrying these arrangements into effect.

Let this Minute be noted in the Finance Department.

TREASURY MINUTE, dated 9 May 1856.

READ letter from the Queen's and Lord Treasurer's Remembrancer in Scotland, stating that Mr. Patrick Boyle has executed a discharge and renunciation of the office of Clerk of Justiciary, with the powers and privileges appertaining thereto, and has received the sum of 6,183*l.* 5*s.* 3*d.*, agreed to be paid to him for so doing.

Write to the Lord Advocate acquainting him therewith, and state that the measures proposed by Mr. Henderson in his Report of the 26th of July 1853, to which the Lord Advocate assented, in a letter dated the 24th of the following month, may now be carried out, with the modification in the salaries of the two clerks in the office of the Principal Clerk of Justiciary suggested by his Lordship, and that instructions will be given to Mr. Henderson to prepare and submit to their Lordships any instrument which may be necessary to confirm the appointments of Mr. Neaves, Mr. J. W. Hamilton, and Mr. G. Macqueen.

Add, that the fees paid by the Crown may now be abolished, and that the Queen's and Lord Treasurer's Remembrancer will be directed to keep an account of those paid by private parties, and pay them into the Exchequer once a quarter.

Transmit to Mr. Henderson a copy of this Minute for his information and guidance, and request that he will take the steps necessary to carry into effect the arrangements consequent upon Mr. Patrick Boyle's surrender of his office of Clerk of Justiciary in Scotland, as set forth in my Lords' Minute of 1st April 1856.
